

CAMPAIGNER... Kurtenbach hard at work.

Kurtenbach Leads Campaign For Dyas

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of four articles about individual workers who are involved in this year's political campaigns.)

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

There's some of the musical conductor, the auto mechanic and the architect in Dick Kurtenbach. He's a political campaign manager.

A key figure in building and organizing the congressional campaign of Hess Dyas, Kurtenbach must now make quick repairs, when necessary, and conduct the whole operation through the Nov. 5 election.

"I love organization," the 27-year-old political technician says. "I like to watch something grow."

It's a good thing he likes it — because Kurtenbach works seven days a week, 10 to 12 hours a day. At that rate, his $600 monthly salary pays him about two bucks an hour.

And before he became a fulltime salaried employee last October, Kurtenbach drove a cab in Lincoln during the summer of 1973 to help support him while he was researching voter precinct statistics for the coming Dyas campaign.

Already, after only a few years of experience in only a half-dozen political campaigns, plus a Democratic voter registration drive, Kurtenbach is being compared to another young Nebraskan who began mastering the nuts and bolts of politics in 1968.

Six years ago, it was Gene Pokorny who was pouring over precinct statistics and organizing block workers for Gene McCarthy's 1968 presidential primary campaign.

Pokorny later directed other Nebraska campaigns, piling up the experience which in 1972 helped him organize the Wisconsin presidential primary victory which turned the tide for George McGovern.

Kurtenbach worked in that Wisconsin primary campaign, but he only knew Pokorny over the telephone.

His interest in politics began to develop while he was in the Army, Kurtenbach recalls. "I saw waste in the military,"

he said. "I saw people in authority who didn't have any regard for the tax dollar."

"But, more than that, I came to realize that people in authority didn't have all the answers. And, therefore, they shouldn't be given blanket authority."

"And I began to realize that I could do as good a job as anyone else."

When he left the Army in 1970, Kurtenbach decided to become involved in helping choose and elect the people in civilian authority.

At Wayne State College, the Wakefield veteran ran for president of the student body (he won) and got into student voter registration drives.

By 1972, he was working in the McGovern primary campaign. In Nebraska, Kurtenbach was assigned five counties, and McGovern won them all.

After the primary, Democratic State Chairman Hess Dyas tapped Kurtenbach to direct the Democratic voter registration drive. In three months, Democrats added about 50,000 registered voters, and cut the Republican voter registration lead by 18,000. (Continued on Page 6, Col. 4.)

Predictions Grow... That Impeachment Is Likely

Washington (AP) Members of the House Judiciary Committee were shaping additional charges against President Nixon on Sunday amid growing predictions from both Republicans and Democrats that impeachment is likely.

Nixon, meanwhile, was flying back from a California working vacation, already focusing on the full House, where he predicts he will win vindication.

The committee voted 27 to 11 Saturday night to recommend Nixon's impeachment for having "prevented, obstructed and impeded administration of justice" in the Watergate cover-up. All 21 Democrats and six of the 17 Republicans on the committee voted for the article of impeachment.

Senate Majority Whip Robert C. Byrd, D-W. Va., predicted Sunday the House will impeach Nixon.

He said the votes were not yet present for a Senate conviction, but that "the possibilities for conviction, I think, are growing daily."

Majority Vote Needed

A majority vote in the House is needed for impeachment, with a two-thirds vote required in the Senate for conviction and removal from office.

One of the six committee Republicans who voted for the impeachment recommendation, Rep. L. Caldwell Butler of Virginia, said Sunday he expects the vote in the full House to mirror the margin in the committee.

Appearing on the CBS interview program, "Face the Nation," Butler predicted at least one-third of the Republicans in the House would vote for impeachment.

Another committee member, Rep. Ray Thornton, D-Ark., predicted on the same program that a number of Southern Democrats also will support impeachment.

'Will Have Impact'

Rep. Paul Sarbanes, D-Md., sponsor of the impeachment article approved Saturday night, told newsmen, "I think the judgment reached by a 70 per cent majority of the committee will have an impact on the House."

One of Nixon's defenders on the committee, Rep. David W. Dennis, R-Ind., acknowledged "that's the popular wisdom and I suppose there's some truth to it."

House Democratic leader Thomas P. O'Neill of Massachusetts, who has repeatedly predicted the House would approve impeachment by a margin of 60 votes or more, predicted after the committee's 27-11 decision that impeachment would carry by at least 70 votes.

Democratic committee members caucused Sunday to discuss additional articles of impeachment. Many were in casual dress and most appeared relieved that the climactic vote was behind them.

'Glad It's Over'

"Last night was the first good night's sleep I've had in a month," said Rep. Walter Flowers, D-Ala. "I'm glad it's over."

The committee probably won't conclude its nationally televised and broadcast deliberations until Tuesday.

When it reconvenes at 10:30 a.m. EDT Monday, it will take up other articles of impeachment which sponsors spent the weekend refining.

The first probably will be a broad article charging Nixon with violating the constitutional requirements of his office by various acts, ranging from alleged misuse of the Internal Revenue Service to setting up the White House plumbers unit.

The committee's second-ranking Republican, Rep. Robert McClory of Illinois, has drafted such an article. He also has prepared another one accusing Nixon of contempt of Congress for failing to comply with eight committee subpoenas for 147 taped conversations. McClory voted against the article of impeachment approved by the committee on Saturday.

Tax Deductions

Another article, being drafted by Rep. Edward Mezey, D-Iowa, charges Nixon with claiming unauthorized income tax deductions and using government funds to improve his California and Florida homes.

Nixon was returning to Washington Sunday from a 16-day stay in his San Clemente estate.

A majority vote of the 435-member House is required to place Nixon on trial in the Senate, where votes of two-thirds of the 100 members are necessary to convict and remove him from office.

Congressional leaders want the House to reach a decision by late August.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said he would meet Monday with Senate GOP leader Hugh Scott to begin "anticipatory" preparations for a possible Senate trial, perhaps beginning in September.

Ford Unchanged

Talking with reporters on the lawn of his suburban Virginia home an hour after the committee voted, Vice President Gerald R. Ford said he remains convinced Nixon is innocent of any impeachable offense.

Law Helps Spouse Avoid Will Probate

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

If your spouse left an estate containing less than $10,000 worth of personal property you may not need an attorney or need to go to court on the matter.

Under provisions of LB755 passed by the 1974 Legislature, property in an estate containing personal property valued at not more than $10,000 may be transferred to the surviving spouse or distributees without waiting for appointment of an administrator or the probate of a will.

The new law increases the amount from $3,000 to $10,000 which could be transferred by means of affidavit.

Effective July 12

Lancaster County Judge Ralph Slocum said that the new law became effective July 12 and many people, including attorneys, are not aware of the change.

The new law specifically states that the surviving spouse or distributees, upon delivering an affidavit showing the existence of the defeasible right to receive the personal property, are entitled to that property providing the total estate does not exceed $10,000.

For example, according to Judge Slocum, if a couple possessed all jointly-held property with the exception of a mobile home which was in the name only of the deceased, the surviving spouse could acquire title by use of an affidavit as long as the mobile home was worth less than $10,000.

Probate Proceeding

Under the previous law, a surviving spouse would have been required to go through court probate proceedings in order to acquire title to property when the estate was valued at more than $3,000.

The other requirements which must be met in order to acquire property by affidavit under provisions of LB755 are that the deceased has been dead more than 40 days and that no petition for the appointment of a personal representative is pending or has been granted by the court.

Judge Slocum pointed out that the law also applies in cases where there is a will providing the total value of the estate is less than $10,000.

He said a law was passed in 1955 authorizing such transfer for up to $750 which was intended to allow, for example, a surviving spouse without going through court proceedings to acquire title to a motor vehicle, which may have been the only property in the deceased's name alone.

'Should Cut Down'

The amount was later raised to $3,000, Judge Slocum said, and now to $10,000 which "should cut down the number of estates filed with the court."

Lancaster County Judge Jeffere Chevront noted that the law also changes the time limit for filing claims, inventories, and final accountings in an estate to "hopefully decrease the length of time necessary to administer estates."

Under the law, every special administrator must make and return inventory within two weeks after appointment but every other executor or administrator must make and return inventory within two months rather than three months as in the previous law.

The bill also changed the time in which creditors are allowed to present claims against an estate from 60 days to six months while the previous time was three to 18 months.

Final accounting must be rendered within nine months instead of one year as a result of the change in the law.

Crippled Youth Sets Treading Record

Michael Oldfield of Elmwood broke a world record this weekend by treading water 27 hours from 1 p.m. Saturday until 4 p.m. Sunday at the Lincoln downtown YMCA. Oldfield, 17, the son of Mrs. Dorothy and the late Herbert L. Oldfield, has been in a wheelchair all his life. He has muscular dystrophy. Mrs. Oldfield said her son swims twice weekly with YMCA coach Roger Heithink as part of a health program begun when he was 4 years old. She said the previous record was 26 hours 3 minutes, set two weeks ago in DeSoto, Ill. (Star Photo).

Governors Urge Drought Aid

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Minneapolis — As the 15 Midwestern governors gathered Sunday here for their annual conference, widespread drought conditions in the area have focused the conference's predominant concern on the farm economy.

At least nine of the states have reported drought damage in varying degrees.

Resolutions urging the federal government to raise the target price on grain, rebuild dwindling grain reserves and plant the lid on beef imports are expected.

Norman Borlaug, the 1970 Nobel Prize winner for his wheat research, Tony T. Dechant, president of the National Farmers Union, and Oren Lee Stanley, president of the National Farmers Organization, will address the governors.

Butz Cancels

However, the man the governors most wanted to quiz — Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz — cancelled his appearance for as yet unexplained reasons.

Knowledgeable observers speculate that Butz may have decided not to appear to avoid a possible confrontation over the Nixon administration's farm policy.

Overly-optimistic grain estimates earlier this summer, which some feel were intended to depress farm prices, and the current financial straits of cattlemen, critics say, have boomeranged and are threatening both consumers and producers.

Conference chairman J. James Exon, for one, has periodically attacked the Nixon farm policy. He could find support from the conference's nine other Democratic governors.

Exon may also attempt to revive his idea for stabilizing the cyclical gyrations of the farm economy, a Food and Fiber Board to act as a kind of Federal Reserve Bank for agriculture.

One resolution Exon is sponsoring calls for Nixon to "halt or drastically limit" these imports and to impose import quotas on wheat.

Unless the action is taken, Exon's resolution claims, irreparable harm could come to domestic livestock producers and wheat growers.

Transportation problems also rank high on the list of the governors' concerns. Transportation resolutions offered for consideration seek:

Airline Aid Asked

—A study by Congress to permit direct subsidies to commuter airlines. Experts regard federal subsidies as essential to the development of a good commuter airline system. The resolution is being sponsored by Exon.

—Release of impounded highway funds. Approximately $20 million in highway funds appropriated by Congress for Nebraska are currently being withheld. That resolution is also sponsored by Exon; however, it makes no mention of impounded sewage treatment funds.

—A halt to "wholesale" abandonment of railroad branch lines.

—Rapid construction of a trans-Canadian natural gas pipeline.

—An investigation by the Federal Energy Office into the reason for higher gasoline prices in the Midwest.

A resolution is also being sponsored by Michigan Gov. William Milliken asking Congress to include urban and non-reservation Indians in all Indian programs.

Trade TD's For Water?

Minneapolis — Gov. J. James Exon reported this weekend he may have "negotiated" some relief for Nebraska's drought-stricken crops.

However, the tongue-in-cheek "trade agreement" will undoubtedly have to be ratified by Cornhusker football fans.

Nebraska's bargaining chips in the agreement are its college football players: Minnesota is offering some of its abundant water resources in return.

Emerging from a meeting with Minnesota Gov. Wendell Anderson, a grinning Exon announced he offered to trade a quarterback, a tight end and a middle guard from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln football team in exchange for water from 10 of Minnesota's reported 10,000 lakes.

Anderson was last reported to be giving the offer serious consideration.

Judges Win Hands Down Against Senatorial 'Team'

By EDWARD W. HOWARD
Associated Press Writer
The regular season doesn't start until Jan. 1, sports fans, but the pre-season contests between the Judges and the Senators have been fan-tas-tic.

Especially if you're a Judge fan.

An unofficial tabulation shows the latest score, right up there in the headlines: Supreme Court of Nebraska 4, the Legislature 0.

Not So Close
And the game, sports fans, isn't nearly as close as the score indicates.

Four times in recent weeks the "take a chance" legislative offense of the Senators who put it together during their last session was thrown at the Judges.

And four times those who carried the ball into the courtroom were stopped cold.

The Judges prevailed, thumbs down.

In this pre-season analysis, what can be said for the future hopes of the Senators? What can they do to solve the seemingly invincible "judicial defense?"

Suggestions Offered
With the understanding that the Senators, in their current game plan, have no place to go but up, we offer them the following suggestions.

First, get a rule book. It is called the Constitution of the State of Nebraska. You can pick one up at the stadium, uh, Capitol Building.

Second, read it.

Third, since the decision of the Judges is almost always final, stop trying the old hidden ball trick. They're watching, so you might as well play by the rules, er Constitution.

Without belaboring any of the points which the Senators haven't scored, let's take a quick look at the last few games, and see how the Judges "decisioned" the legislative team.

Take the game, uh, case, that involved public tuition grants to students in private schools. The Constitution says the senators can't give public money to private schools. So what happened? The senators used the old "Who me?" play, and gave the money to the students, who were simply conduits to the schools. The Senators lost that one.

Then there was the technical community college game. That was a unanimous shutout. The Senators knew the Constitution wouldn't allow them to levy a statewide property tax. So, they simply pointed an appropriations-loaded gun at the counties, and made them do it individually. That, the Judges said, was clever. But it was still an illegal use of the hidden ball trick.

Fault Lies With Fans
We offer an initial conclusion here: The fault lies, at least in part, with the fans at the stadium, er, Capitol.

You see, the fans who show up and cheer and sneer are the lobbyist types. They also write the most fan mail. It seems that the senators will do whatever those vocal fans want, and see if it can get past the Judges later.

The problem is, it doesn't

Clearwater Girl Killed In Crash South Of Neligh

Neligh (UPI) — A Clearwater teenager was killed and three persons injured Saturday evening in a car-pickup truck crash on Neb. 14 one mile south of Neligh.

The Antelope County sheriff's office identified the victim as Miss Bonnell Hemenway, 17, who officers said was driving an eastbound pickup truck out of an Antelope County road intersection.

The pickup truck pulled in front of a car driven by Dwight D. Smith, 68, Plainview. Smith and his wife, Gladys, 69, the passenger in his car, were listed in critical condition at the Neligh Hospital.

Robert Hoefler, 20, Elgin, the passenger in the truck, was hospitalized in satisfactory condition in Neligh.

work. And the people who can't watch the "games" every day, but would like to use the schools that were jeopardized, find themselves the real potential losers.

The Senators' first step toward a comeback is to grasp the fundamentals of the game. For example, when the Constitution says you can't levy a statewide property tax directly, it also means you can't do it indirectly, either. Same way with grants to private schools.

Every time you try one of those Terry Carpenter-type rushes, you know you are likely to be stopped by one of those Hale McCown-type decisions.

Might Have Saved Game
These same basic rules might have saved the milk price fixing game, and the liquor distributorship contest.

The liquor distributorship game, er bill, apparently involved a trade. The liquor distributors agreed to stop booing every time the Senators wanted to use a tax increase play, and the Senators agreed to pass an unconstitutional law that would handcuff manufacturers who wanted to change franchise holders.

What's that? Well, no, I don't know if they really knew it was unconstitutional when they did it, but it says right there in the rule book.

What? No, I'm not making fun of the team. But if they're going to get angry every time someone reads the score, they've got another good reason for getting another game plan.

And a rule book.

Corporate Taxes Reported Falling

Lexington, Mass. (AP)—A former economic advisor to President Johnson said tax shelters provided by Congress had given American corporations an everdecreasing effective federal tax rate.

Otto Eckstein, a Harvard professor and president of Data Resources, Inc., said a survey by his firm has shown that the average effective corporate tax rate has fallen from 43.3% in 1973.

Eckstein said the rate declined to an estimated 43% in the first quarter of 1974.

Wyoming Crash, Blaze Are Fatal To Omaha Man

Rock Springs, Wyo. (AP) — Richard Appletoft, 28, of Omaha, was burned to death late Saturday when a semi-truck he was sleeping in rolled on its side and caught fire about six miles east of here.

Officers said the truck driven by Thomas Maddox, 31, of Bellevue, struck the rear of a car and went out of control. Maddox was sent to the burn center at Salt Lake City for treatment.

The accident occurred on Interstate 80.

Pot Crop Good Despite Drought

Omaha (AP) — Authorities reported Sunday there was an abundant harvest of marijuana to be had in Nebraska, despite the drought.

With an estimated 115,000 acres of the illegal weed growing in the state, officials expect hundreds of persons — some from other states — to join in the harvest between now and this fall.

Lt. Wayne Rowe, who heads the Nebraska State Patrol's drug division, said "public awareness is the key to apprehending harvesters."

Rural residents, especially, were asked to be on the alert for suspicious persons and vehicles.

Rowe said though pushers were bringing in "tremendous quantities of marijuana from Mexico, there still is a shortage, making a good market for the local weed."

The lieutenant said it is difficult, if not impossible, to distinguish between the potent Mexican and weak Midwestern marijuana by sight.

He said marijuana harvested in Nebraska sometimes is shipped to California, packaged to appear as if it is Mexican-grown, and returned to Nebraska for sale at inflated prices.

Officials said a few harvesting arrests have been made, but many more will likely come in August and September when harvesting is heaviest.

To locate harvesters, officials expect to use airplanes in surveillance of fields this year.

They noted that eradication is by mowing and hand cutting, not by chemical sprays because of the danger they'll damage crops and ornamentals.

The plant itself has sawtooth-shaped leaves and sometimes is called the "hippie Christmas tree."

Full Indian Participation At Fort Said AIM's Prime Goal In State

Gordon (UPI) — Full Indian participation at historic Ft. Robinson, including the establishment of a permanent village, will be a prime goal of the American Indian Movement (AIM) in Nebraska.

Bob Yellow Bird, temporary AIM state chairman, made the announcement Sunday during a pre-state convention planning meeting in Gordon at which three other AIM leaders showed up. Two were from Alliance and the other was from Martin, S.D.

When asked by newsmen about the small turnout, Yellow Bird replied "it only takes one to start a revolution."

Hotel Fall Kills Omaha Man, 55

Omaha (AP) — Donald Darwin McGinnis, 55, of Omaha, has died of injuries suffered in a fourth floor fall from an Omaha hotel.

Police said the man lived at the hotel and apparently fell or jumped from the window of his room, landing in an alley west of the hotel, police said.

He was dead on arrival at a hospital.

Yellow Bird added, however, that in spite of a planned "more militant stand" about Indian involvement at Ft. Robinson, the move would be done "without violence."

"All our goals will be non-violence, but if anything should happen, we stand ready to take up arms. We want to project a new image and educate the people to the problems of Indians," Yellow Bird said. "The city fathers in western Nebraska have refused to have any dealings with minorities."

Yellow Bird led a band of Indians, including women and children, during a brief occupation of the museum at Ft. Robinson in November 1972.

Curator 'Cooperative'

He said Vance Nelson, museum curator, has been "very cooperative," but the prime problem came from the failure of the state to allow funds for the development of Indian projects at the Western Nebraska fort.

Yellow Bird said the Indians wanted a 99-year lease on 1,000 acres at the fort. Included in the proposed permanent Indian village would be an Indian educational center for Indian

Neighborhood Improvement Coordinator Will Be Urged

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

The employment of a neighborhood redevelopment coordinator by the city would speed up proposed improvement programs for the Clinton Neighborhood, Community Development Director Leo Scherer said.

Scherer is proposing that the City Council budget $13,000 to hire such a coordinator, who would plan and supervise the city's proposed $122,925 investment in that north Lincoln neighborhood.

Phase I of the redevelopment plan, for the area from 27th to 33rd, Holdrege to the railroad tracks, calls for a sizeable city subsidy to paving streets in the area.

Scherer is proposing the city create redevelopment paving districts, which would differ from regular paving districts, since the city would pay 75% of the paving bill.

Sign Petitions
Scherer hoped that the promise of city dollars would encourage property owners to sign petitions requesting paving districts on the following streets:

Potter from 31st-32nd; Fair from 29th to 32nd; and 31st from Fair to Center; 29th from Fair to Hitchcock; and 30th from Fair to Hitchcock.

The city's 75% share would pay $81,825 of the total $109,350 paving costs.

Scherer described the paving program as vital to the overall redevelopment effort.

"If not the most important, it is one of the most important projects which can trigger other improvements in the area," he said.

The projects selected to be undertaken during Phase I were worked out with the Clinton Neighborhood Organization, which is hoping to stop further deterioration of the area.

Street, Alley Improvements

The city administration also has budgeted $10,000 for street and alley improvements to pay for increased maintenance and graveling of roadways.

Another $2,000 has been included to step up enforcement of environmental codes to remove rubbish and junked cars, to mow weeds, keep up city properties and remove dying and dead trees.

Construction of a tennis court at the Clinton School at 29th and Potter, would cost another $5,000.

Although no city dollars have been budgeted, the housing administrator's office is planning on supervising a home repair program announced in May by the mayor's office.

The plan calls for rehabilitation of 15 houses in the Clinton area through the cooperation of Lincoln lending institutions. The institutions have agreed to finance both bankable and high risk loans.

Special Loan Fund

The program will include a special loan fund to provide below-market interest rates on loans to elderly homeowners supported only by Social Security.

The special fund also would serve low income families and others who are economically unable to borrow money for home improvements at current interest rates.

The entire Phase I redevelopment area lies south of the controversial Northeast Radial's proposed path.

Scherer explained that when the program was first conceived, no decision had been made on the radial. Subsequently in April, the council rejected the project as it is presently designed.

The budget for the redevelopment plan will be reviewed by city lawmakers this week.

The heat's on in the afternoon.

Don't add to it.

Your air conditioner works hardest in the afternoon. Don't fight it. Try to avoid afternoon activities that add heat or humidity to your home. Whenever you can, reserve your cooking, ironing, laundering, dishwashing and bathing for morning or evening. You'll stay more comfortable—without wasting valuable energy.

And remember...keeping your air conditioner set at 78 degrees rather than 73 degrees is an easy way for you to save money—as much as $25 for the season in an average 1,200 square foot home.

Turkey Balks At Compromise

By The Associated Press

Turkey appeared unwilling to compromise its conditions for a Cyprus peace settlement Sunday, but delegates at the Geneva peace conference argued past the midnight deadline Ankara set for Greece to accept its terms.

The Turkish delegation had warned that if Greece did not accept by Sunday night, it would walk out of the talks. The Greek government accused Turkey of making "unacceptable and non-negotiable" demands and committing "numerous cease-fire violations" in Cyprus.

In the Turkish capital, Premier Bulent Ecevit met for two hours with the Greek ambassador to Turkey, then emerged early Monday with the announcement that the Geneva peace talks would continue.

Ambassador Dimitrios Cosmopoulos requested the meeting to break the deadlock in Geneva over the conditions Turkey had set, including the right to continue reinforcing its Cyprus invasion force until a permanent political agreement is reached.

The Athens government announced that it had requested a meeting of the United Nations Security Council, but at the United Nations, new Greek Ambassador Denis Carayannis said his government had decided not to do so because of "some fresh hope" at Geneva.

The council nevertheless met Sunday night. The special session was asked for by the Soviet Union because it said "the fighting is still going on" on Cyprus and "a threat to international peace and security continues."

The Soviets called for withdrawal of all foreign troops from Cyprus and warned the Security Council that the island could become "a permanent hotbed of military conflict."

The British denounced the council meeting, which the Russians had demanded, as "a propaganda exercise."

Several delegates argued that the council should wait for developments at the Cyprus peace talks in Geneva before meeting again. But the Russians insisted that the council not become "an auxiliary organ" of the Geneva conference and demanded another meeting Monday. The meeting was scheduled for 3 p.m.

The Greek government announcement said it also wanted a meeting of the NATO foreign ministers because of its trouble with its North Atlantic Treaty Organization ally.

In another development, Athens also said Ecevit had proposed a summit conference between himself and Premier Constantine Caramanlis of Greece to discuss Cyprus.

But government spokesman Panagiotis Lambreas told The Associated Press he could not say where or when the summit might be held. The Greek reaction to the reported Turkish proposal was unknown.

In Ankara, Ecevit told newsmen that unless Turkey's demands at Geneva are agreed to, "we will not be in a position to sign a cease-fire agreement."

"We are still seeking a peaceful solution," Ecevit said. "I would not like to talk about the possibilities of war. But we are prepared for all possibilities."

The Soviet Union told conference participants it is sending a special envoy to serve as an observer to the talks. The envoy, career diplomat Victor Ivanovich Minin, 48, was expected to play a role similar to that of U.S. Assistant Secretary of State William Buffum, already an observer at the conference.

The Soviet Union earlier in the day demanded that ousted Cyprus President Archbishop Makarios be allowed to join the talks and that all foreign troops — both Greek and Turkish — be withdrawn from the Mediterranean island.

Greek Foreign Minister George Mavros told a newsmen after emerging from a round of negotiations at the Palace of Nations that "things are not going well."

Among the key elements of the stiffened Turkish position was an insistence that Turkey be allowed to reinforce its troops on Cyprus without restrictions until a permanent political settlement is reached on the island.

Until early Sunday, the terms of a military standoff on the island had been considered negotiable issues, conference sources said.

Mavros, with British support, has insisted that the Turks agree to a military standstill on Cyprus and that the Turkish force — estimated by neutral observers as up to 25,000 troops — be allowed only normal supplies from the mainland.

The Turks also demanded establishment of an autonomous administration for Turkish Cypriots, the elevation of Turkish Cypriot leader Rauf Denktaş as co-representative of the Cyprus government, and the return of Turkish enclaves and villages now under Greek Cypriot control.

Cyprus Massacre Reported

New York (UPI) — NBC news said Sunday night Greek national guardsmen lined 15 Turkish villagers up against a wall in a village on Cyprus last week and shot them to death.

NBC correspondent John Palmer reporting from the village of Alamines 30 miles south of Nicosia said the incident occurred July 20, the day of the Turkish invasion of the island.

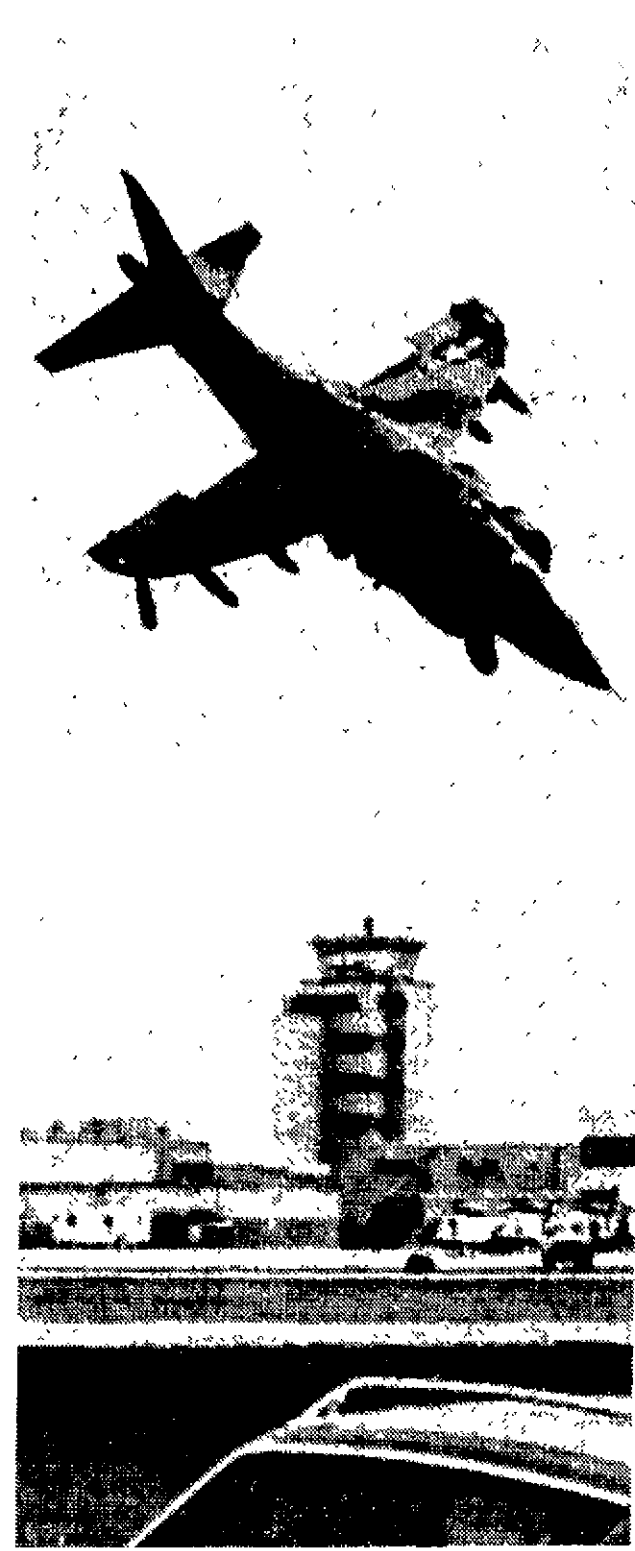

"There was a massacre," said Palmer.

"Male Turkish villagers between the ages of 25 and 50 were lined up against a wall and shot. An NBC news team along with Jim Hoagland of the Washington Post went to the village Sunday morning to check out reports of the killing."

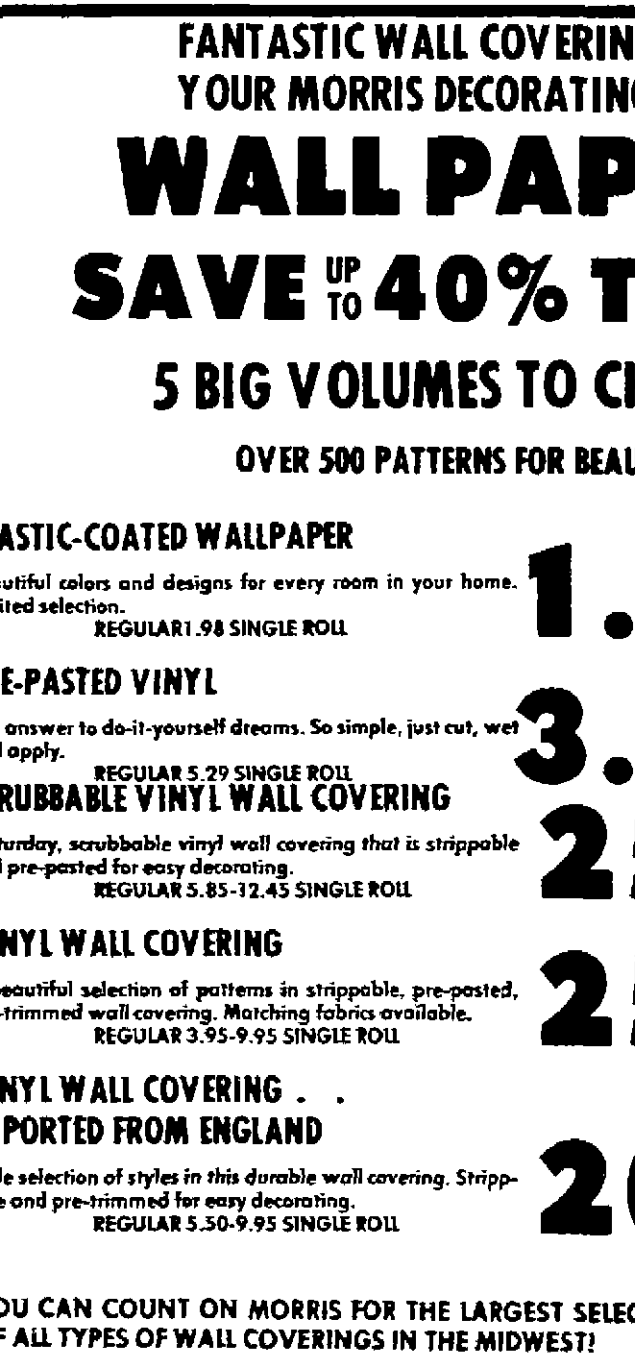

"Two old men in the village showed us what happened," Palmer reported.

He said they told the newsmen the Greeks washed the blood off the wall then buried those slain in a mass grave.

The newsmen dug up one body, he reported, and an English speaking Turk confirmed the slayings, saying the Turkish men were killed because the Greek national guardsmen were in a rage after their commander had been killed in an earlier clash with Turkish residents in the town.

Self Control Cited In Nixon Actions

©The New York Times

San Clemente, Calif. — Disappointed by reverses in the Supreme Court and House Judiciary Committee, hurt by the incessant attacks on himself and his associates, President Nixon is able to go stoically about the business of the presidency only through the exercise of enormous self-control.

This is how several of Nixon's closest aides described his emotional state as the crisis of his presidency draws nearer to its climax.

Their description, presumably, reflects Nixon's own self-image.

The President ended Sunday a 16-day working vacation at La Casa Pacifica, his oceanside estate here. Over the past 16 days, he has made a major economic address, met with businessmen, discussed the Cyprus crisis with Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, met with the West German foreign minister, played golf, gone swimming, and attended a party thrown by his budget director, Roy Ash.

He has also worked at avoiding impeachment, spending an average of two hours a day in that occupation, according to a White House spokesman.

While he has been here, the Supreme Court has ruled against his claim of absolute executive privilege and the Judiciary Committee voted to recommend he be impeached for obstruction of justice in the Watergate scandal. But Nixon himself has not said a word in public about the impeachment process. He has left all comment about the court decision and the House vote to his surrogates — to his lawyer, James D. St. Clair, and to members of his White House staff.

Their message has been basically two-fold: the President, they say, is confident that the full House of Representatives will reject the articles of impeachment on the ground that there is no evidence that he is guilty of impeachable offenses. Meanwhile, they add, he is conducting the business of the nation as usual.

The President's aides have also been asserting that the setbacks he has suffered over the past few days are not as drastic as they may appear. For example, one key aide said that the Supreme Court decision did give the President part of what he was seeking by affirming that there is an executive privilege that may be exercised by the President.

But privately, the White House aides concede that the impeachment process is putting heavy strain on Nixon.

"He has been under the most brutal kind of attack for the last two years," said one of the President's close assistants. "He is not immune, he is not aloof to these pressures. He is a sensitive man."

Soviet Public Told Impeachment News

©The New York Times

Moscow — The Soviet public was informed Sunday in a brief statement broadcast by television from the Soviet news agency Tass that the machinery to impeach President Nixon had been set in motion by Judiciary Committee of the House of Representatives.

The popular nine p.m. Moscow television "Vremya" news program also showed the Russian people a glimpse of the committee and its chairman, Rep. Peter Rodino, D.-N.J., at work during its recent hearings.

Clearly still reticent about reporting the embarrassing news, Soviet authorities phrased the two-paragraph account to emphasize Nixon's confidence that he would be cleared by the full House.

Nixon has hitherto been portrayed in the Soviet Union as one of the pillars of Soviet-American détente. As such, he has been spared practically all direct criticism. The government here has been distressed by the fact that the President, who has been described as a trustworthy and friendly acquaintance of Party Leader Leonid I. Brezhnev, and other Soviet leaders, should now face disgrace in his own country.

4th Policeman Dies

Mexico City (AP) — A fourth policeman died here from wounds received four days earlier in a gunfight in a Mexico City residential area involving more than 100 police and about a dozen gunmen, authorities said.

New York Times News Summary

Resignation Appeals Expected

Washington — Three senior Republican members of the House Judiciary Committee said they expected renewed appeals for President Nixon's resignation after the committee completes work on a bill of impeachment later this week. The three, all of whom voted against Article I of the impeachment resolution Saturday night, predicted in telephone interviews that such appeals could grow out of Republican fears of the consequences of impeachment on their party and on the nation as a whole.

Greeks Worried

Athens — A High Greek official said Greece may have to ask the United States to put "more drastic pressure" on Turkey to achieve a solution to the deadlock on Cyprus. The Greek government, which had been highly optimistic, became grave and solemn Saturday as reports indicated that the Geneva negotiations seemed to be faltering.

Printers Sign Contract

New York — Members of Typographical Union No. 6, voting 1,009 to 41, approved a contract that opens the way for automated typesetting at the New York Times and the New York Daily News. The contract had tentatively been approved in May after months of contentious negotiations. Expiring on March 30, 1984, the contract has been described by both sides as historic, ending years of resistance by the printers to the use of computers and electronic typesetting machines to replace their hand craft.

Nixon Concessions Noted

Washington — Congressional authorities have noted that while the impeachment inquiry has been gaining momentum, President Nixon has made important concessions of authority to the Congress that must decide whether he remains in office. The administration is said to be more cooperative in providing Congress with information and access to officials in the executive branch; Nixon has also consulted congressional leaders of both parties more often on a wider range of issues than had been his custom.

Mayor Attacks Controller

New York — At a news conference, Mayor Abraham D. Beame angrily charged City Controller Harrison J. Goldin with "distortions" and "shabby" tactics in the continuing controversy over multi-million dollar discrepancies in New York City's financial records. Goldin, who succeeded the mayor as controller, held a news conference of his own, in which he charged the mayor with "succumbing to hysterical advice" and engaging in "diversionary attacks on me to muddy the waters."

Tax Break Expected

New York — Anyone considering selling his home might consider adopting a "wait and see" attitude for several months, the reason being the possibility of a tax savings. The House Ways and Means Committee has decided tentatively to give taxpayers over 65 who sell houses an additional tax break. The same break may be extended to all home owners, regardless of age.

OPEN Thursday 'Til 8:30 P.M.

Toledo — Madrid is hot as a sheriff's pistol in July. Government offices close down. The streets are deserted in the afternoon. In the evening, people turn out again and walk the Gran Via and the Castellana among the spouting fountains.

We hired a car and drove the antique road to Toledo.

The ancient town is tiered on a hill. On three sides it is embraced by the Tagus that flows on through Portugal to the sea at Lisbon.

It was a fortress city. Most of the walls remain. It was the capital of the Visigoth kings who took over Roman Spain. The Moors conquered it in 711. Built the Moorish gates. Put in archery slits.

Catholic kings reconquered it 400 years later. The leg irons they struck off Christian slaves are hung in the city.

During the Spanish civil war, it was subjected to a long and terrible siege. Kings are buried in the Cathedral. And it is the only church in Spain that still celebrates the Mozarabic Mass — an antique Catholic ritual that survived in occupied Spain during 800 years of Moorish rule.

These are the warm gazpacho days in Spain. Gazpacho is a delicious cold soup. It is made by pressing the juices from tomatoes, cucumbers, onions and green peppers.

To this you add olive oil, vinegar and water. It is served with side dishes to add to it: Bread crumbs, bits of ham, chopped onion, tomato, cucumbers, peppers — all flavored with a bit of garlic. You serve it well chilled.

They say it is descended from the Roman posca, a kind of K-ration issued to the legions. It is filling and refreshing.

The Vente de Aires is a pleasant restaurant outside the walls in a thin grove of dusty olive trees. And when I arrived, the management was in the midst of an enormous wedding party.

A banquet room was opened for about 200 guests. A busload of lady tourists unloaded and were trotted through to another room. They looked a little puzzled, like sheep going up the ramp at the slaughterhouse behind the judas goat.

The waiter brought me a little glass of sherry, and I went into the courtyard to see the wedding party.

The bride had a little mileage on her for Spanish brides. She looked about 30.

She also had a look of determination and triumph — maybe a little exhaustion too. I got the idea it had been a long and frustrating engagement.

The groom and other star performers were in rented morning coats and striped trousers. The groom had a slightly stunned look. He smiled constantly, but looked as though he didn't know what he was smiling about.

A professional photographer was taking pictures. And the morning coats — (either already married or feeling the hot breath of narrow escape) — slipped off to the bar from time to time and lapped up a little cooking sherry.

It was apparently a very fine wedding. The proprietor puttered about with a worried look. And a crew of waiters hustled back and forth from the kitchen trying to do the under-four-minute mile with mountainous trays.

The food is very good at Venta de Aires. They serve a light, dry Spanish white wine. No doubt the Romans and Visigoths drank the same.

The Moors were forbidden alcohol by holy law, thus missing one of Spain's finer products. However, being allowed four wives, they made up for it by having more wedding parties.

So we sat in the shade. Looking through the olive trees up at the tiered houses with their tiled roofs and the old Roman-Gothic-Moorish brown walls with their embrasures and arrow slits and fighting platforms. All built for life and wars the world will never see again.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast For Monday

For the Earth signs, the goal is the important. Earth signs are Taurus, Virgo and Capricorn. These are the individuals who strive, who achieve, who buck the percentages and overcome obstacles. who climb mountains and shatter records — just because of the challenge. The Earth signs cannot always articulate their feelings, but they do demonstrate by actions, reactions and by doing in the face of often overwhelming odds. Here, among Taurus, Virgo and Capricorn, are the steady, the stubborn, the daring, determined persons who, although basically conservative, will go all out to prove that "impossible" is an adjective for fools.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Friends and lovers may be disappointing, now is not the time to pass final judgment. Wait and see. Take philosophical view. Some of our major hopes, desires are on verge of fulfillment. But if you push, rush or insist, you also lose. Act accordingly.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Be ready for individual who seems to know you better than you know yourself. Gemini, Virgo persons could be very much in picture. Accents on how much you can afford — and when promises can be delivered. You will comprehend.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Fix things around the house. Establish relationship that could lead to something big, important, even permanent. If single, marriage is spotlighted. If married, you may be considering a business partnership. Married or single, your desires are close to fulfillment.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Avoid self-deception. See people in light of actuality. Remove rose-colored glasses. Your wishes are one thing, actions are something else. Know it and demand performance, not the whisperings of sweet nothings. Pisces, Virgo are in picture.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Older person wants to share, to demonstrate and illustrate. Be receptive. Don't be afraid of and toss aside pride that, in the past, created problems. Learn from another's experience. Money is on the line and you may be beneficiary.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Finish rather than begin. Find ways of achieving, distributing. Aries, Libra individuals figure prominently. Build for future. One who usually placates you may take adversary role. Don't insist on clarity being gained. Calm to treat loved one in more considerate manner.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Maintain independence without being arrogant. Give full play to creative abilities. Leo, Aquarius persons are in picture. Ideas can develop into working projects. Know it and keep the faith. Hear him improve and you become more interested, concerned with surroundings.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Intuition about money is apt to be on target. Know it and act accordingly. Aquarius is in picture. You could be in line for windfall. Be aware. Financial chance to prove a point for legitimate profit. Reward for efforts is etched clear, strong and definite.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Regularly increases. You have more fun — and you hear knock of opportunity at door. Key is to try, test, be versatile, exploring, trimming. Instead, look beyond the immediate. You are on verge of building, increasing, gaining prestige.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Refuse to be painted into emotional corner. Study Sagittarius message. What you fear may, in actuality, be a deeper tiger. Face facts. Be frank. Truth will make you strong. Aquarius, Leo, Scorpio persons are in picture — and when promises can be delivered. You will comprehend.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Don't mix friendship and money. You cannot "buy" affection. Know it and act accordingly. You may seek too much, too soon. Gemini, Virgo persons are involved. See in light of reality. You make progress by taking one step at a time. Avoid extravagance.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Watch weight! Keep diet resolutions. Exceed pressure but don't panic. Realize grass is not necessarily greener elsewhere. One in authority is closer to you than might be imagined. Know it and keep within rules, regulations.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are fortunate, a teacher, a basically serious and dignified person. You make money with Virgo, have fear of Cancer persons, are physically attracted to Sagittarius and Gemini. Many Aquarius. Social life has accelerated and in August you will be closely "tied" to member of opposite sex.

Legally Sound, But Regrettable

The Nebraska Supreme Court last week, as expected, struck down the state's textbook loan law as unconstitutional because it violated the requirement for the separation of church and state.

The court may have been legally correct in reaching its decision, but we can still lament the fact that the decision as a practical matter will have an adverse impact on education in this state.

The law, which would have provided for the loan of public school textbooks for non-religious courses to parochial school students, was patterned after a New York textbook loan law which was upheld by the New York State and U.S. Supreme Courts. The Nebraska law was never implemented, pending a test of its constitutionality.

The Legislature can't go in by the back door and "circumvent an express provision of the Constitution by doing indirectly what it may not do directly," said Chief Justice Paul White for the five-member majority. "The fact that the benefit of the secular textbook goes originally to the student, rather than directly to the school, is a mere conduit, and does not have a cleansing effect of removing the identity of the ultimate benefit to the school from public funds. Textbook loans to students or parents of students are, in effect, appropriations for, or in aid of, private schools and as such are impermissible."

Thus the court majority rather narrowly interprets the constitutional requirement for church-state separation and makes it very difficult, as Nebraska Catholic Conference Executive Director Paul O'Hana suggests, "for the Legislature to adopt anything of very much significance in aiding parochial schools."

In dissent, joined by Judge Hale McCown, Judge Lawrence Clinton noted that the law provided for the reimbursement of public school districts for the cost of the textbooks purchased or loaned and that the law "seems clearly to be public-benefit legislation applying alike to children in all schools, and gives a certain modest measure of financial relief to all parents from the tax sources to which all alike contribute." Clinton went on to say that "it is clear that the textbook loan act does not relieve the private school of any of its obligations. It receives no aid or benefits and obtains no more dollars than it would otherwise have."

That is the sort of broad interpretation we had hoped would prevail in the interests of equal educational opportunities.

Private schools are an integral part of the system of educating children in Nebraska and in the nation. In striking down the textbook loan law, many Nebraska students may be denied the educational opportunity enjoyed by public school students and that is something to be regretted.

Planning Future Growth

The consultants updating Lincoln's Comprehensive Plan have been given, by the City-County Planning Commission, three alternative growth plans to consider regarding Lincoln's future metropolitan growth, character and arrangement.

Barton-Aschman, compliments of the planning commissioners, can now study Plan A, aimed at radial growth around the downtown core to the north, south and west; Plan B, which calls for the full-scale development of the Stevens Creek Watershed and the construction of a north-south freeway east of 84th and Plan C, which would require the compacting of growth, or the increasing of density, in the existing land area.

A fourth alternative permitting the natural growth of the city according to existing policies was thrown away by the planning commission. We wish the commissioners had not been so hasty and will go back to the waste basket and retrieve the fourth plan. Everything should be considered.

Plans for Lincoln's future growth can't be set irreversibly into concrete with everything in Plan A, say, acceptable, and everything in Plan B or Plan C beyond consideration. There are parts of all the plans we don't like or are unsure about.

We know that these plans are subject to change and that Lincolinites themselves will pretty much determine the city's destiny. But we object, philosophically, to a Plan A, Plan B, Plan C approach.

For example, we are not totally convinced that the radial growth concept can or should be religiously adhered to, or on the other hand, that Stevens Creek watershed should be developed on a full-scale basis. Or that a need has been demonstrated for a north-south freeway. Or that population density should be doubled.

ON TARGET

By DON WALTON

While the concentration of attention and money will rest with gubernatorial and congressional contests this election year, the battle for attorney general could be the most intriguing clash of them all.

In one corner stands Frank Morrison, the former three-term Democratic governor, now Douglas County public defender.

In the other corner is Paul Douglas, veteran Lancaster county attorney, making his first bid for state office.

It's prosecutor versus defender.

It pits a household name against a statewide political newcomer, whose name is known to everyone in Lancaster County, but not yet familiar to most people in Douglas County and outside.

It matches a man who has climbed to the top of the political mountain in Nebraska against a man who may be starting to ascend that mountain.

Ah. Stop there for a moment. That last one is what adds so much portent to this contest.

Many Democrats, already assuming a re-election victory for Jim Exon, are looking at Douglas as their most dangerous 1978 gubernatorial opponent should he win this year's race.

And they believe that if they could knock him off this time, they may have removed an obstacle from the path of continued Democratic domination of the governor's office four years hence.

Paul Douglas isn't talking about running for governor. But the fact is that he would be a strong prospect in 1978 if he could defeat a big Democratic name like Frank Morrison this year, then build a record of public service as attorney general over the next four years.

If Exon is elected, as many Democrats assume, then Gerald Whelan will also automatically be elected as lieutenant governor.

That would place Whelan in ideal position to attempt to succeed Exon as governor in 1978.

It would also deny Republicans the two top state offices, leaving them the opportunity to develop future prospects within statewide office only from the positions of secretary of state, auditor, treasurer and attorney general.

Obviously, among those four offices, the one which could provide the most publicity and the most public service activity would be attorney general. If he chooses, he can, in fact, be the people's attorney, the public's advocate and protector.

Thus, the opportunity would be there to build a political future.

The office of attorney general has often been the road to the governorship or other high office in other states.

In Nebraska, that has not been the case.

Until 1966, the State Constitution prohibited the attorney general and other elected state executive officers from seeking another office during the term for which they had been elected.

That provision has now been repealed.

And since that time, Clarence Meyer, with no eye on higher office, has been the attorney general.

Interestingly enough, Morrison last week in Lincoln suggested that such a prohibition should be reinstated.

So as not to be misleading, it should be repeated that Paul Douglas has indicated no future interest in the governorship. The speculation comes from Democratic ranks, not from the man himself.

Whether some Republicans are already thinking in those terms or not, many Democrats are.

Democrats have become accustomed to claiming the governorship in this nominally Republican state. With a single exception (Nobly Tiemann), they have reinstated their claim every election year since 1958.

As Republicans tend to eye Democrats as future threats to their U.S. Senate seats, Democrats look at Republicans as threats to their hold on the governor's chair.

Many Democrats are now viewing Paul Douglas as such a danger.

New York — Dr. Gallup reports that Vice President Ford has moved into a big lead for the Republican presidential nomination, which is the most surprising news since Ron Ziegler last declared Richard Nixon not guilty.

For this development, Ford has no one but himself to blame, although his nomination to be vice president is basically responsible. Scarcely a day has passed since that nomination, however, that Ford could not have fallen into any one of several pitfalls; instead, he has avoided most of them and emerged as the choice of 27% of Republican respondents in the latest Gallup poll. That is a rise of three points since January.

More important, Ford has moved into the lead among independents, too. In January, Gov. Ronald Reagan of California led him, 17 to 16%, in that category; the latest poll puts Ford ahead of Reagan 20 to 13%.

Former Governor Nelson Rockefeller of New York, supported by only 12% of Gallup's Republican respondents, also had the support of 13% of the independents polled. Support among independents is a necessity for anyone seeking the 1976 Republican nomination, for the good reason that independents

Mr. Ford Widens His Lead

ELLIOT RICHARDSON... the second 'Mr. Kleen'...

outnumber those identifying themselves as Republicans by 34 to 24% of the nation's voters — 42% of whom call themselves Democrats.

Ford's widening lead among Republicans AND Independents is not surprising for a number of reasons. More than any other potential candidate, he has been moving about the country, attending Republican functions, speaking for the party, raising money for its candidates. These activities make Ford better known personally, more influential politically and more visible as party leader. Given Nixon's difficulties, the vice president is the nearest thing Republicans have to an official symbol of stability and leadership.

To independents and Republicans, moreover, Ford must look appealingly "clean as a hound's tooth" by comparison to the daily headlines from the court and committee rooms of Washington. In presidential politics he is that rarity, a new face. Most political observers give him good marks for his most difficult task — "walking the tightrope." That is, they think he has managed to uphold his loyalties to Nixon and the Republican Party without getting sucked into the Watergate mess or appearing too blindly partisan.

Besides, of all the potential candidates, Ford is the only one who might BE president in 1976. If Republicans could run an incumbent, it might go far to make up some of the ground lost by Nixon's difficulties; and the possibility that Ford might succeed to the presidency, virtually assuring him the nomination, is bound to be persuasive to a lot of Republicans who are looking for a winner.

The latest Gallup findings suggest that Ford may be even stronger among Republicans than his apparent lead suggests. Among the 11 possibilities listed was Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, still a sentimental favorite in his party but not really a serious candidate for president in 1976. Goldwater polled 16%, as much as Reagan and four points more than his old antagonist, Nelson Rockefeller.

Not much of Goldwater's 16% is likely to go fully to Rockefeller; that it did not go to Reagan at this stage may mean that he does not yet have a tight hold on Republican conservatives — who still dominate party affairs and look longingly back to Barry. On the other hand, all these early preference polls tend not to have much meaning when it comes down to a hard choice between one or two, or at most three leading candidates.

Clearly, however, Gerald Ford's lead for the Republican nomination is widening; and the worse things look for Richard Nixon, the more that trend will continue. Wise Democrats, therefore, will not pay much attention to those jokes some people like to tell about "good old Gerry" playing football without his helmet. The fact is that for the last six months or so, he has handled himself as well as any leading political figure and better than most — and in more difficult circumstances than any.

When Dr. Gallup matched him against Edward Kennedy last May, a sample of 1,543 respondents in 300 locations gave Kennedy the lead, 50 to 39%. That is not a margin to give any Democrat much comfort, considering that party's still unresolved problem with George Wallace, the imponderable of the Chappaquiddick incident in Kennedy's past, and the real possibility that if Gerald Ford succeeds Nixon as president, he would name Elliot Richardson as vice president — giving the Republicans two incumbents and two "Mister Kleens" for the 1976 campaign.

A Nixon-And-Ford Understanding?

WASHINGTON — Sources close to Vice President Gerald Ford say he has reached a private understanding with President Nixon.

The vice president, who is effective in the backrooms, has agreed to work quietly on Capitol Hill against impeachment. As one source put it, Ford "doesn't believe that the President is guiltless but only that it hasn't reached an impeachable level."

The President, in turn, has offered to help groom Ford as his successor. To help overcome Ford's weakness in foreign affairs, for example, the President will probably send him on a foreign tour after the November elections.

The understanding between the nation's top two leaders, says one source, has developed from several informal conversations. Another source stressed that the understanding has been more tacit than explicit. "There is no quid pro quo," he said. "I don't think that is the way they do business."

The idea of a vice presidential trip, for example, was discussed shortly after Ford's appointment. It has come up from time to time in their private conversations.

Ford likely will visit the Soviet Union, Middle East, Western Europe and Far East. He has already gone to Communist China. Now he would like to visit Taiwan and Japan. He is also eager to spend some time in Israel and Egypt. He has also talked to the President about stopping at NATO headquarters.

The vice president doesn't want to take a whirlwind tour. He would like to stop in each country long enough to learn something about it.

Ford still tells friends that he isn't seeking the presidency. But he is not unaware that he now leads the polls as the favorite for the 1976 Republican presidential nomination.

The Watergate steamroller has run over a veteran civil servant, Mike Acree, who has been accused of helping President Nixon persecute his enemies through tax audits.

The doughty Acree has served the government faithfully for 37 years. He almost died of a heart ailment in 1970, but came back to win the National Civil Service League award for his courage and integrity.

He moved up from the Internal Revenue Service in 1972 to become Customs chief. But today, he is hanging on to his job by frayed fingernails.

Acree deserves to have his side of the story told. We have pieced it together from grand jury testimony, secret Senate transcripts and interviews with the principals, including some of Acree's past bosses.

The grand jury testimony shows that Acree was summoned in 1971 to the White House annex by Jack Caulfield, the ex-detective who served as the White House liaison man with law agencies.

It took two visits before Caulfield finally got around to asking Acree, then the IRS inspections-chief, how to initiate tax audits. Acree explained tersely that the procedures were laid out in IRS rules and could not be abridged.

Unfortunately for Acree, according to the testimony, Caulfield tried to pump up his own importance in memos he wrote to his White House superiors. These old memos, many of them false and misleading, made Acree appear like a White House patsy.

Caulfield claimed, for instance, that Acree agreed to help with an audit of Newsday reporter Bob Greene who had dared to criticize presidential crony Bebe Rebozo. Under penalty of perjury, Acree contradicted the charge.

Caulfield also said that Acree met with him and presidential secretary Rose Mary Woods' brother, Joe, at the Fairfax Country Club to talk about a private sleuthing agency with a "black bag" capacity. This could mean cash payoffs or Watergate-style break-ins.

Acree acknowledged he had once talked to Caulfield tentatively about forming a legitimate detective agency but swore there had been no mention of "black bags."

Caulfield testified that Acree had showed him tax data on the Rev. Billy Graham and actor John Wayne, both of whom had complained of IRS harassment. Caulfield said Acree also provided him with information on other actors for comparison.

These statements, protested Acree, were false. He had not shown Caulfield the Graham and Wayne tax data, and another IRS official drew up the comparisons of actors' tax troubles strictly for internal IRS use, testified Acree.

He asserted that the only checks he ran for the White House were on individuals seeking clearance for appointments and, in one case, on a man who wanted to give a wine cellar to President Nixon's Sam Clemens home. To forestall embarrassing situations, checks on government appointees have been made by IRS for both Democratic and Republican presidents.

Acree's defense, in fairness, should not be lost in the Watergate welter.

Despite all the Watergate lies that have backfired, presidential press secretary Ronald Ziegler still seems incapable of

Harmless Marijuana

Lincoln, Neb. We were happy to see that the City Council had some doubts about funding a program which compels citizens to alter their behavior by use of a potentially harmful drug (Antabuse), but we don't understand the lack of discussion about the harmless drugs like marijuana.

Timothy White's letter (Star, July 23) aptly states our opinion on the currently misplaced police activities and priorities. We would like to know how much of the proposed $826,710 increase to the Police Department budget will be wasted on arresting the harmless marijuana user?

For those of us who find it difficult enough to afford today's inflated cost of living, the total sum of the increase is almost unfathomable and given the rising rate in violent crimes, any increase seems to be a reward for inefficiency. We hope the City Council will publicly itemize and justify any portion of this proposed increase that would be used for marijuana investigations and arrests. The public should know if their funds will be used to purchase electronic surveillance equipment, to hire more narcotic agents or to otherwise intimidate law-abiding citizens while rapists still roam the city streets and the rate of real crime skyrockets.

King Richard's Henchman

Blair, Neb. One of the imponderables connected with Watergate and Nixon, and the whole sordid mess, is how come Ron Ziegler, the one man really closest to Nixon from the very beginning of his reign, the man supposed to know everything but tell only that which flatters, remains above suspicion in connection with Watergate, as all other members of the Nixon team have fallen by the wayside.

It couldn't be the press taking care of its own, could it? Isn't it conceivable, really, that Ziegler was a full partner in the shabby, disgraceful and sordid manipulations of his boss? Yet he remains on the scene, still offering up his daily concoction: "The king can do no wrong."

To Each His Own

Lincoln, Neb. I have to smile, and yet it irritates me a little, too, at those people who complain so bitterly that the law has caught up with them but others have gone free, others guilty of probably more serious crimes or law infractions. As witness the Arizona couple who were ticketed here in Nebraska, and didn't think much of it.

Other people's shortcomings don't excuse our own, make them any less punishable, nor will they ever. Each violation has to be judged on its own lack of merit.

34 More Join With Extension . . . Of RECP Deadline

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

An extension of the deadline for signing up for long-term agreements on conservation practices in Otoe County has more than doubled the number of farmers participating in the program, according to Charley Peterson, district conservationist for the Soil Conservation Service (SCS).

Peterson noted that 21 farmers had signed up to participate in the new Rural Environmental Conservation Program (RECP) during the first sign-up period but the new total of 55 had been achieved when a one-month extension of the sign up period was announced on May 1.

Peterson and Norman Doehring, area conservationist, think that participation in the program increased because of publicity about it and because of the close working relationship the SCS has with the county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS), a sister agency in the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Conservation programs in all Nebraska counties became a complicated affair this spring as a result of a court order forcing the U.S. government to reinstate funds out from the old Rural Environmental Assistance Program (REAP), which was dropped more than a year ago.

Contractors Begging

There was a full year without any conservation program funded with federal money before the new long-term RECP program got started, leaving contractors begging for jobs.

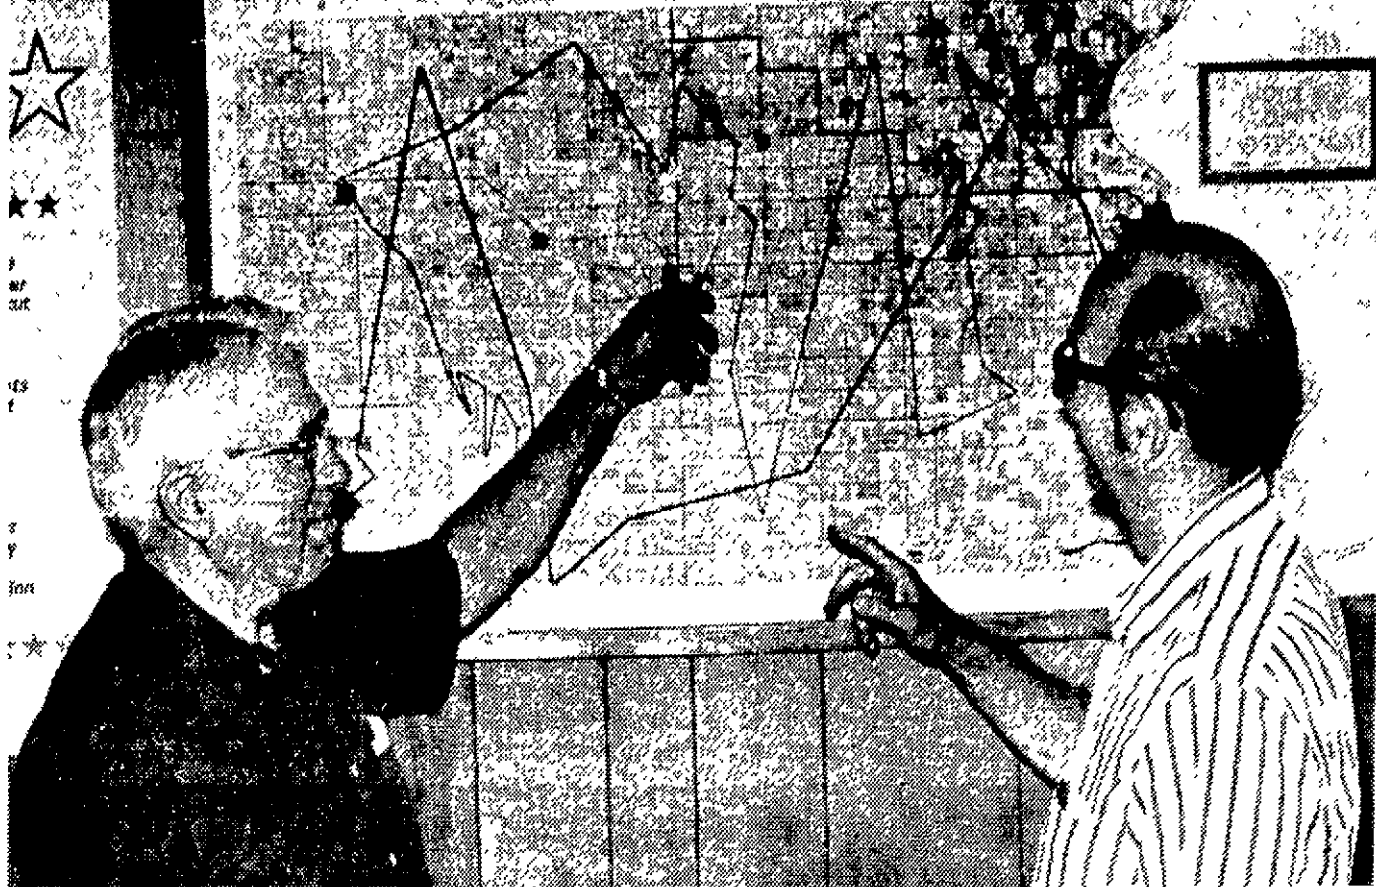

Some quit the business and others took contracts for land clearing and a host of other construction jobs creating a shortage of operators of heavy equipment as the conservation programs were resumed this spring.

Then came the court decision that reinstated the REAP program, giving conservation personnel two programs to administer this year after having no programs at all last year.

Peterson, Doehring and Herman Minderman, of the ASCS office, like the long-term aspects of the new program much better than the older annual programs with fluctuating budgets due to congressional action and presidential fund-withholding.

Planning Possible

"This way we can all plan better; we can line up personnel and we have a pretty good idea of how much work we will have to do in the coming year," Doehring explained.

Paul Antes, a long-time conservation-minded farmer who participated in the Brownell Watershed and Otoe Soil and Water Districts before becoming a director of the Nemaha Natural Resource District thinks there is still plenty of work to be done.

"We have a major problem with overgrazed pastures. We have a lot of structures that are in need of maintenance and we have new projects that need to be built. The steel in some structures at today's prices will take most of the government money in many of these cost-share projects," Antes said.

Under the program the government can pay from 50 to 80% of the cost of a conservation project. However, the total amount of the government funding for an individual farm may not exceed $2,500, so in many larger projects the farmer pays the lion's share of the cost.

Increased Costs

Sharply increased costs of doing the work could result in an increase in the estimate of the government cost share on a project only if it will drop below the 50% figure.

Thus far the county office has $207,014 in requests for conservation projects with farmers investing a similar amount of money.

Some 8,369 acres of land will be improved by the project on 55 different farms over the period of the agreements, which runs from three years to seven years.

A major problem in getting the conservation work done this fall after the corn and milo are harvested will be the shortage of contractors resulting from the one year in which there were no federal funds available to encourage farmers to do soil and water conservation work.

"We have 160 requests for work under REAP. We have serviced 106 of them but the shortage of contractors and of SCS technical personnel will make it very difficult to get all the work done this fall," Peterson noted.

Peterson credited the sharp increase in conservation interest to "just a little federal seed money to help offset the increased cost of saving soil and water."

Spotlight on Agriculture

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Farmers, veterinarians and ranchers who see predator damage to cattle, sheep, hogs and poultry are being asked to take photos whenever possible as evidence that some predators do actually kill livestock.

The pictures should be sent to the State Department of Agriculture's predator control division in Lincoln.

Obviously, a picture of a coyote in the act of killing a calf, pig, lamb or turkey will be hard to get. It is, however, considerably more effective than a photo of an ad ad animal.

There are reports of a child's pet duck being killed near Lincoln this week and of heavy losses by one of the state's turkey growers. It isn't known what killed the duck but the turkeys were wiped out by a pair of bobcats which had taken to slaughtering dozens of the birds each night.

Why some animals become livestock killers and others don't is hard to say, but both farmers and wildlife lovers need to recognize that some animals do cause problems, that not all animals cause problems, and most important, it takes a professional to be able to selectively remove the problem killer, whether it is a coyote, wild dog, bobcat or even a racoon.

With extremely dry conditions, wildlife will be hurting so we can expect to see hungry coyotes experimenting on domestic animals in a search for food.

Perhaps we ought to take up farming in Switzerland where the local government readjusts farm income twice a year just to be sure farmers make as much as city folks.

Of course your ranch will average 12 acres and your cow herd about 20 head, but if you and the kids all work hard you should be able to make out pretty well.

The Swiss have a couple of ideas that might work in Nebraska. They have special laws that allow a father to sell his farm to his son at one fourth of actual value, thus avoiding a lot of taxes.

They also have a subsidy on farm buildings which pays about half the cost of building a barn. The money for the subsidy comes from a special tax on land sold to developers around cities.

There are some great stories floating around Nebraska about farmers' and land owners' experiences as they start up center pivot irrigation systems.

One set of the giant sprinklers traveled right over a pickup left parked in a field, ruining the hood and battering the vehicle but not causing much damage to the $27,000 irrigation system.

A visiting banker out to see what his loan money purchased parked his Cadillac at the edge of a sprinkler-equipped field with the windows down.

The huge traveling sprinkler filled the car brim full with water as it passed by while watering the corn.

Then there was the farmer who had a few trees in his fields which might interfere with his system on its first trip around. He started it up and then removed only those trees that blocked the traveling towers. He hadn't expected the system to be long enough to hit a telephone pole in his farm.

He had been cutting down trees with a chain saw and was too far away from the switch to shut off the machine before it would hit the pole when he noticed the problem. He did what he had to do to save his system. He sawed down the pole allowing the machine to pass un-molested.

Senator Maurice Kremer has rigged up an arrangement that permits him to stop his center pivot system and irrigate the corners of his field. "We have had a number of people stop by and tell us our system quit working when they see it sitting still dripping water instead of traveling and sprinkling," he said.

Whatever the problems that irrigators have with equipment, there is no doubt that the water they are putting on their crops is literally saving the economy of the state from a total collapse.

Like it or not, agriculture still funds most of the activity in Nebraska in one fashion or another.

There have been a lot of nutty machines designed for use on farms but the threat of fuel shortages, the presence of large supplies of high sulphur coal and the interest of Dr. Bill Splinter, chairman of the Department of Agricultural Engineering at the University promise to top all previous records.

Splinter is trying to drum up support for a steam-powered turbine fired by coal to pump irrigation water.

Splinter reasons that the sulphur gas from the coal is a needed plant food that could be injected into the irrigation water as a trace element fertilizer.

The turbine could eliminate the need for a gear box on a well and the coal could be fired with a stoker, like a furnace.

It just might work at that.

American Legion Choses Dix Man State Commander

North Platte (AP) — Charles Singleton of Dix was elected commander of the Nebraska Department of the American Legion as the 56th annual convention closed Sunday.

Francis McMahon of Fairmont was elected senior vice commander and Jerry Henn of Petersburg was chosen national executive committeeman. The Legion named the Rev. Leo Raus of Spencer as chaplain.

Area commanders elected were Charis Bargholz of Wayne, area A; Carl Scheel of Battle Creek, area B; Ed Binder of Lincoln, area C, and Charles Stevens of McCook, area C.

In resolutions adopted at a business session, the Legion:

Affirmed the national organization's support of opposition to general amnesty for draft dodgers.

Advocated retention of the Selective Service System on a standby basis.

Supported a strength level of the U.S. Army at not less than 785,000.

Supported better payment and increased pension benefits for veterans.

Urged the complete air conditioning of the Veterans Hospital at Grand Island.

Opposed proposals to return the Panama Canal Zone to control of the Panamanian government.

Went on record in favor of individual immunity from prosecution for some members of the National Guard in Ohio involved in the Kent State University shooting. The resolution said the guardsmen were trying to maintain law and order.

Jaycees Will Back Muscular Dystrophy Drive

Fremont (AP) — The Nebraska Jaycees wound up their annual summer meeting Sunday with a business session at which support of muscular dystrophy drives was voted.

The Jaycees agreed to collect aluminum throw-away cans, put them into recycling for profit, and give the money to the fight against muscular dystrophy.

The Lyons Jaycee Chapter, voted No. 1 in the nation at a recent national convention in San Diego, was presented its award at a banquet Saturday night.

The speaker was Capt. Joe Adelman of Kansas City, who has been with the police force for 30 years. Adelman is a humorist.

A prayer breakfast also was held Sunday for the estimated 500 Jaycees and Mrs. Jaycees attending from over the state.

Named as delegates to the national convention were Mrs. Peter Marchetti of Omaha, Mrs. Ed Averill of Lincoln, Mrs. John Sullivan of Clay Center, Mrs. Ed Morman of Crofton, Mrs. Herrin and Mrs. Henkens.

Mrs. Hefer Elected By Legion Auxiliary

North Platte (AP) — Mrs. Walter K. Hefer of Sutton was elected president of the Nebraska American Legion Auxiliary at the conclusion of its state convention Sunday afternoon.

Named as national committeewoman was Mrs. John Horstman of Lincoln, who has been department president. Mrs. Orville Dudden of Venango was named historian.

Mrs. Lester Henkens of Chadron defeated Mrs. Dan Herrin of Brady in a race for endorsement as northwest division national vice president.

Women's Golf Official, L. Franks, Services Set

Funeral services will be at 3 p.m. Tuesday for Louise E. Franks, long-time Nebraska women's golf official, who died Saturday. She was 63.

Mrs. Franks was a past member of the national board and Nebraska state representative to the Women's Trans-National Golf Association and a past president of the Lincoln Women's Golf Association and the Hillcrest Country Club Women's Golf Association.

Born in Wymore, Mrs. Franks was the winner of several local golf tournaments. She was a charter member of the Hillcrest Country Club.

Survivors include her husband, Ted, and brothers Chester and Leonard Wilson.

Weekly Grain Report

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Farmers are guessing how high grain prices may go and are basing their sales on these guesses.

Free information that can aid guessing can be obtained by writing to the State-Federal Department of Agricultural Statistics in Lincoln or for $30 per year from the Kansas City Grain Market Review in Kansas City, Mo.

Based on conditions that exist today (which could change considerably by tomorrow) here are some basic estimates of where grain prices could go.

Corn could possibly go above $4.00 sometime this fall but it is unlikely that it will go above $5.00 or below $3.00.

It is too scarce to get much cheaper and livestock prices are too low to make feeding expensive corn attractive.

Wheat prices could reach $4.50 if all goes well and they could drop as low as $3.50 if farmers panic into group selling at an unfortunate moment in the next year.

World demand for American wheat is high and shipping costs are dropping. If farmers market their crop gradually, spreading sales over 10 months, prices will stay good, probably close to $4.00 or better. Wheat at the farm at $5.00 seems pretty far fetched at this point.

Feed grains will follow corn up and down. Feeding anything in the form of grain will be quite expensive this year.

Soybeans are the wildest crop of all. They will range between $5.00 and $10.00 at the farm. Low livestock prices probably will prevent a rise above $10 but dry weather should prevent a drop below $5.00.

Bob Hope Sets Attendance High

Omaha (AP) — It was only a matter of time.

Bob Hope wound up a week of breaking records at Ak-Sar-Ben with a crowd of 9,662 Saturday night. It gave the comedian a six-show total of 60,673, breaking the all-time attendance record of 51,160 set by Wayne Newton last year.

Campaign Details Left To Staff

And during that time, Dyas and Kurtenbach, who had first met in July of 1972, got to know each other.

"I respect Hess as a political candidate and as a politician," Kurtenbach noted.

"Hess is a good candidate. I've been involved in some other campaigns where the candidate wants his finger on everything. Major decisions are made by consensus with Hess and the staff, but he pretty much leaves the details to us. The day-to-day functioning of the campaign is in our hands."

Overall Responsibility

Kurtenbach's assignment is, at once, simple and compound: overall responsibility for every aspect of the campaign.

His research last summer pouring over voting records for 1970 and 1972 in the more than 600 precincts of the 27 counties of the First Congressional District, Kurtenbach emerged with 300 "target" precincts which will receive the bulk of the campaign's time and effort.

They are the sizeable precincts in which voters have indicated a willingness to be "persuaded," Kurtenbach explains.

Never Enough

"There is never enough time, money or energy to do everything everywhere."

So these are the precincts which will be canvassed and coffee, probed and pampered with attention.

The campaign was structured from that foundation.

Now Dyas has 500 to 600 volunteers at work, Kurtenbach estimated, with more to come.

Campaign costs have reached about $60,000, halfway home toward a budget of $120,000. Even though a six-figure campaign for a Democratic congressional candidate is about as common in Nebraska as a dinosaur, Kurtenbach believes the budget is attainable.

One-to-One Donations

Dyas has gone one-to-one with more than 350 people seeking donations, Kurtenbach said, and has come away empty handed only about 15 times.

"They know we've got a shot at winning," Kurtenbach explains. "They're more willing to give."

The strategy is relatively simple: increase the normal Lincoln vote by 5%, win 55% of the Lincoln turnout, grab Dodge and Gage Counties, and about 10 more, and Hess Dyas unseats Charles Thone.

But no county gets ignored, Kurtenbach said.

Where Dyas does not win, he has to come close.

"My role is to make sure that

Murder Suspect To Go To Florida

Lonoke, Ark. (UPI) — Arkansas authorities Sunday turned over Cecil Floyd, 34, charged with three murders in Florida, to the custody of two sheriff's deputies from Orange County, Florida. Floyd waived extradition.

Lonoke County Deputy Sheriff Fred Allison said the Florida deputies picked up Floyd and his wife, Lorna, 24, early Sunday and left to return to Florida before noon. Allison said Mrs. Floyd had not been charged by Florida authorities with any offense, but she was wanted as a material witness.

Floyd and his wife had been held in the Lonoke County Jail since July 21 when they were arrested following an armed robbery of a service station. Floyd was questioned about 11 killings in six states while Arkansas authorities had custody of him. The couple gave statements to law enforcement officials from North Carolina, Tennessee, Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska, in addition to Florida authorities.

Orange County Sheriff Mel Colman of Orlando said Friday Floyd had been charged with first degree murder in the November death of Union Park motel operator Barney Rysyk, the February slaying of Karen Chitwood and the May death of Lelis Johnston.

Allison said the Floyds had been charged with robbery in Arkansas, but that the charges would probably be dropped.

"Since higher charges are pending against them, we released them to a higher charge," Allison said.

Sheriff Bill Shultz of Hamilton County, Neb., who questioned the Floyds, said he filed a charge of murder against them in connection with the killing of a service station attendant during an armed robbery July 12 at Aurora.

Most of the murders the Floyds were questioned about occurred during armed robberies, but in at least one instance, a hitchhiker was killed on a mountain road.

The FBI said Floyd was also wanted in connection with the kidnaping of an 18-year-old Misanopy, Fla., youth from a market.

Allison said the Floyds offered no resistance when they were arrested at Lonoke.

County School District Asked

Ainsworth (AP) — Brown County voters will vote Aug. 13 in a special election on the new county-wide school district proposed by the Brown County school district reorganization committee.

Under the proposal, all of Brown County would become one school district, with the exception of areas already committed to joint districts with another county.

Dr. Anderson Ending 45-Year Practice

Stromsburg — Dr. C. L. Anderson, general practitioner here for the past 45 years, has announced his decision to retire Aug. 1. The son of an early day Stromsburg physician, Dr. Anderson, 70, was graduated from the University Medical School in Omaha in 1928 and interned at Baylor University Hospital in Dallas, Tex. He opened the Stromsburg Hospital in 1940 which closed in 1960 after the county hospital was established in Osceola.

Millet-Sorghum Field Day Scheduled

Scottsbluff — The University of Nebraska-Lincoln Panhandle Station will host its third annual Millet-Sorghum Field Day Aug. 20 at the High Plains Agricultural Laboratory near Sidney. The program and tour will start at 9 a.m.

Old Settlers Picnic Set For Rosalie

Rosalie — The 41st annual Thurston County Old Settlers Picnic will be held here Friday and Saturday. Highlight of the two-day event will be the Saturday parade at 6 p.m. featuring the SAC Air Force Band plus floats, bands, clowns and saddle clubs. Friday's events will include a ball game, barbecue, open tractor pulling contest and street dance. On Saturday a greased pig contest, races, amateur archery contest, watermelon eating contest and street dance will be staged.

Young Farmers, Ranchers Going On Tour

Crete — Approximately 180 Young Farmers and Ranchers and their wives from 30 chapters have signed up for the eighth annual Nebraska Young Farmers and Ranchers Educational Association Tour at Crete Aug. 9-10. The Nebraska Department of Education said the tour will include visits to Farmland Industries, Inc., packing plant; Geigy's test plots; haying demonstrations and a farming operation.

Seward Property Tax Levy Reduced

Seward — The Seward City Council has reduced the 1974-75 property tax levy by 2.91 mills, following a public hearing. Only one councilman cast a vote against the $689,000 budget.

Oshkosh Group Taking Long Ride

Oshkosh — Mr. and Mrs. Rick Dunbar, their 14-month-old son Gylh, and friend June Olsen have embarked on a horseback ride to Cheyenne, Wyo., into the mountains and south to Mexico. They average about 25 miles per day and carry a two-day supply of food.

Rev. Campbell Leaving Beatrice

Beatrice — The Rev. George W. Campbell, pastor of the Christian Church here for the past 15 years, has resigned to accept a similar post in Lawton, Okla.

everything we set out to do gets done," Kurtenbach explains.

"I know if we do what we set out to do we will win."

Progress Measurable

The progress is already measurable, he said.

Telephone polls in Lincoln last December gave Dyas 9% of the vote. Not so many weeks ago, he was at 23%. Now, Kurtenbach said, Dyas is at 32%.

In precincts which he has worked, Dyas does 12% to 15% better than in those in which he has not yet made a move, Kurtenbach said. And he has three months to move.

In the meantime, with experience, the campaign itself gets better, he said.

"I think we're gonna make it," Kurtenbach will tell you, not boastfully, but confidently.

If they do, Dick Kurtenbach expects to be around to help Dyas try to do it again in 1976.

'Now days people have more interest in their careers and social lives than they do in their children's lives.'

How Not To Raise A Delinquent

By GRACIA McANDREW
Star Staff Writer

The arrest of persons under 18 years of age comprised 25% of the total arrests made in Nebraska in 1973. These arrests, numbering 13,162, showed a 24% increase over 1972 figures, according to statistics compiled by the Nebraska Commission on Law Enforcement and Criminal Justice.

Obviously, these figures very well may cause concern for parents of children in their teens and younger.

Those persons working in the area of juvenile delinquency agree that better communication between parents and children and more family togetherness could perhaps lower the rate of juvenile crime.

According to Robert L. Harrison, associate director of the Omaha-Douglas County Crime Commission, juvenile delinquency knows no socio-economic discrimination.

"These kids come from poor and rich families," he stated. "The main reason (for juvenile delinquency) is nonparent involvement with children."

"Often there is a lack of love or support that children need when they are growing up."

"Now days people have more interest in their careers and social lives than they do in their children's lives," he added.

However, Dick Benton of the State Crime Commission noted that those youngsters apprehended and arrested for delinquent acts usually come from the lower socio-economic class.

"In a national study conducted in 1970, it was found that 3% of the delinquent acts committed is detected," Benton explained. "That means that 97% of those acts go unnoticed."

"Therefore, I can only speak of that 3%. And most of these young people come from families with internal problems, such as broken homes, alcoholism and mental illness. They are from the lower socio-economic class."

"Also, juveniles and adults in institutions usually come from that 3%," he emphasized.

"If a kid does come from this lower class he is more apt to get caught, because the police patrol the low-income areas more."

"Delinquents are the result of child-rearing practices and environmental setting," he said.

Benton contends that good parent-child relationships should start developing during the child's infancy before he "has sophisticated thinking."

"A baby, when he isn't eating, is sleeping, so he doesn't communicate much unless he really needs something," he continued. "When he cries, he needs to know that when he needs something, you're there."

And as a child grows older he or she may resort to more severe methods — often criminal acts — to secure the parents attention.

"Many times the children are fighting for identity," Harrison said. "For example, if the parents are having a party and the kids are younger, they will send them to a babysitter. If they are older, parents will tell their children to go to a friend's house."

"So the kids are thrown out on their own."

Consequently, in an effort to gain recognition from their peers and to assert their individuality, youngsters will use any means possible, Harrison said.

Harrison suggest that parents demonstrate more interest in their children's activities, involve kids in family discussions . . . "make sure that the child feels that he belongs."

But what if you are a parent and know of or suspect your child's involvement in a delinquent act?

"Confront him with it," said Benton. "And if it is a crime where restitution could be made, it should be."

"And if restitution couldn't be made and it really wasn't a severe crime, I would tell him what could happen to him and how I would feel about something happening to him."

"He should understand the magnitude, seriousness and consequences of his actions," he added.

For example, a habitually truant student or runaway could be institutionalized.

"Kids should know that," he stressed, while relating an incident that occurred while he was a probation officer.

One young female on probation was termed a habitual runaway and was sent to the Nebraska Youth Development Center in Geneva.

"While she was there she learned how to hot-wire a car and a lot about the underground," Benton noted. "She said that she didn't want to run away again, but if she did she was sure she could get a lot farther."

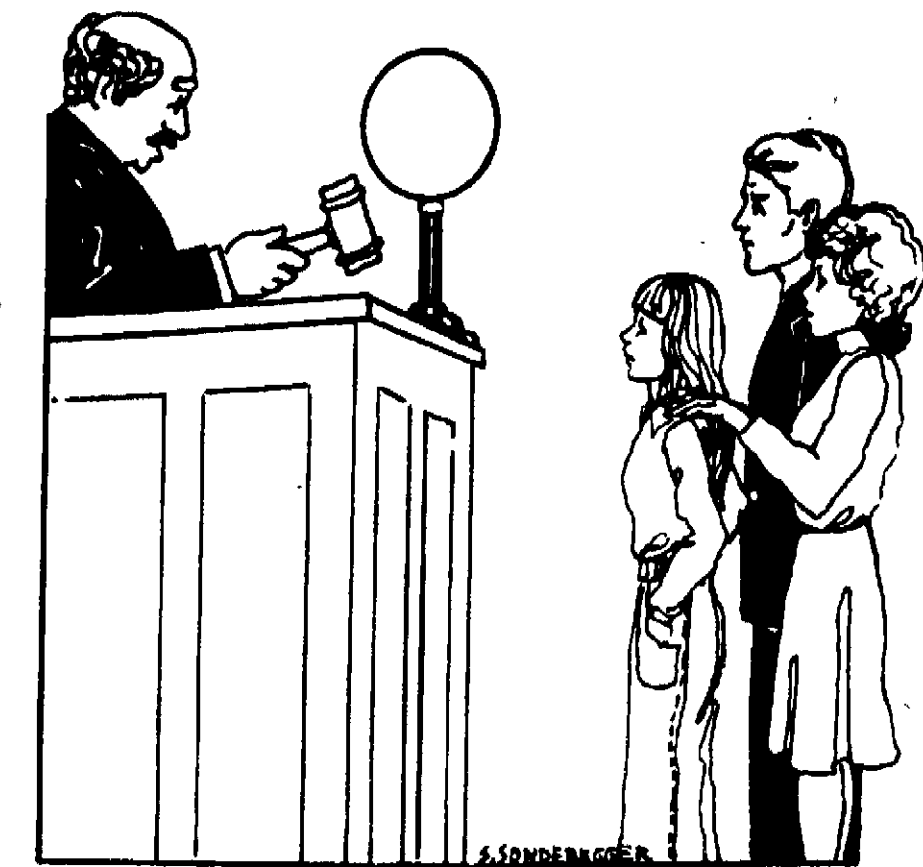

Supportive of Benton's belief in profound awareness of laws and punitive measures is a pamphlet for parents and children issued by the Los Angeles Police Department which defines areas of responsibility and violation of the curfew laws.

The pamphlet, "What Parents Should Know," states that it is the right and duty for parents to know where their children will be, what they will be doing, who they will be with and to inform them of the local juvenile curfew ordinance.

By not exercising these duties, the booklet continues, a parent can be found guilty of a misdemeanor.

One suggestion offered to parents by local juvenile delinquency experts is not to make threats which can result in a stand-off between parents and child or forces the child to rebel in order to stress his own individuality.

"Parents and children, from time to time, have disagreements," stated Judge W.W. Nuernberger of the Lancaster County Juvenile Court. "A big mistake of parents is saying, 'you follow the rules or get out."

"This gives the child a choice and because he is angry, he may decide to leave . . . even when the parents really don't want him to leave," he explained. "Parents just shouldn't make this statement."

"Also, set a good example for your children."

"And commend a child for proper conduct," he added. "This should take place more often than pointing out his mistakes."

But by the same token, Benton pointed out that children should be instilled with independence and knowledge so that they can make decisions and sometimes mistakes.

Help your children realize that "they can make mistakes and rectify them," Benton suggested.

Besides juvenile delinquency, "emotional instability can manifest itself in many other problems," Benton emphasized, "such as mental illness or suicide."

Jim Arnott of the Youth Service System of Lincoln and Lancaster County advises parents to "express love, affection and understanding. Be open, honest and sincere . . . kids are very sensitive to fakes. You have to be real."

Also, "try putting yourselves in your kids' shoes," he added. "Listen, be interested, be sensitive and perceptual."

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: Is it true that some women are just not cut out to be mothers?

Unfortunately, because of inadequate birth control methods, I find myself stuck with two kids. Before I had them, I had a job I really enjoyed, and I was free to come and go as I pleased without being at the mercy of baby-sitters.

Mother Resents Her Children

My husband and I are drifting apart. He still has all the freedom he wants, but I can't go with him. A lot of resentment has been building up inside of me these past four years. Sometimes I actually hate my children for robbing me of carefree life.

You would think that any normal mother would love her children dearly, but if I had only one wish, it would be that I had been born sterile.

Wouldn't it be nice if all the women in the world who want kids and can't have them could change places with those women (myself included) who don't want kids and could have a dozen?

I'm not a child abuser, but I still resent my children. I'm not writing for advice because nobody can help me. It's just something I'll have to live with. After all, it's not their fault that they were born. It's mine.

If there were a book entitled "How to Learn to Love Unwanted Children" it would be just what I need.

NAMELESS IN GA.

DEAR NAMELESS: You are not alone, but most mothers who share your feelings would not admit (even to themselves) that they feel that way. It would make them feel too guilty.

Your letter makes an excellent case for birth control. Every child deserves to be a wanted child. You can't possibly feel this way without communicating your resentment to your children. (You may not abuse them physically, but you are depriving them — emotionally.)

Prostitute Decoy Is Boring Work

Dallas, Tex. (AP) — Bored in your job? Want some exciting night life and adventure? Don't become a policewoman who decoys as a prostitute.

"It was boring," said the Dallas policewoman out to arrest those who proposition women for pay. "I expected it to be a lot of things, but boredom never entered my mind."

The operation is simple: decoy sits in bar, customer strikes up conversation with decoy and offers money, both leave bar, customer is collared by two undercover agents.

At first, she expected a few leers and then to get down to the business at hand.

The first customer talked for 45 minutes.

"I was nervous. I wondered what I was doing wrong. He just talked and talked."

Next came the indirect insults, such as when the customer offered her $5 for her services.

"My God, my makeup costs more than that," she thought to herself. Then there was the guy who only had $17. The hotel room was going to cost him $3.40, so her offered the decoy $13.60.

"What the hell are you doing, charging tax?" yelled the desk sergeant as he read that arrest report.

Next came the fellow who kept insisting to arresting officers that the woman was his wife.

"Did you know your wife was a policewoman?" the officers asked. The decoy bristles when she reads news accounts that she's "enticing" customers.

"I don't wear anything that's the least bit enticing. I dress just like the other cutomers in the bar I'm going to. If it's a higher class bar, I dress accordingly. If it's a hippie bar, I dress like a hippie. The madeup, overdone looking women are never the prostitutes."

As for her own social life, she says she has a very understanding boyfriend.

And as for belligerent customers, she says that's no problem.

"In fact, I was shocked to find that after the arrest, a few men looked me up in the police station and explained they had no bad feeling and wanted to know what I was doing after work," she said.

DEAR ABBY: In reference to that Ph.D. who claimed he had traveled all over the world and had been in the company of ambassadors, etc., and that he didn't know what R.S.V.P. meant: Everybody knows it means "Rented suits very proper."

C. FELTON: ALHAMBRA, CAL.

DEAR ABBY: I have a pet peeve I have never seen aired in your column. It's women who wear heavy charm bracelets that go "jingle jangle, clunkety clunk" in church.

This friend of mine always wears a bracelet like that, and she insists on saving me a seat in church beside her. She always picks two seats way down in the front and in the middle. Every time she moves her hand, those charm bracelets make a dreadful racket, which is annoying to those sitting near us and embarrassing to me. (I've even seen the organist turn around and give her a dirty look between hymns.)

What is wrong with people like my friend? Don't they know any better? Or don't they care? And how can I tell her without hurting her feelings? She doesn't take criticism very well.

LIKES CHURCH—HATES BRACELETS

DEAR LIKES: If your friend isn't aware that her bracelets are a source of annoyance to you and others, do the friendly thing and tell her. Then, if she doesn't leave the hardware at home, find another seat as far from her as possible.

Prices Compared

Despite the fact that food prices are up in the United States, other countries around the world are spending more of their disposable income on food. Compared with the U.S., at 15.8 (1971), the French spend 23.2, the Japanese 26.6, Italians, 28.6 and Finns 33.7 of their paycheck for food.

Taxes Take Biggest Chunk

If you're an average American worker, during an eight-hour workday you spend two hours and 39 minutes earning money to pay federal, state and local taxes, according to the National Live Stock and Meat Board.

Earning enough to buy a day's supply of food and beverage requires only 58 minutes of work, while earning your clothing takes 25 minutes. The rest of your workday goes to paying medical expenses, 23 minutes; recreation, 18 minutes; and housing, one hour. The remaining one hour and 37 minutes goes to pay for all other categories.

U.S. Cotton Statistics

Cotton is grown on about 270,000 farms in 19 Southern States in the U.S., stretching from the Atlantic to the Pacific Oceans. The average size of the crop is about 11 million bales of cotton and about 4.5 million tons of cottonseed. The crop is valued at in excess of 1.5 billion dollars annually.

Bridge: Edwin Kantar Plays The Hand 'Abnormally'

By B. JAY BECKER
North dealer.
East-West vulnerable.

Opening lead — king of diamonds.

And, indeed, Kantar would have lost two club tricks had he played the suit normally—that is, a club to the ace followed by a club back to the queen.

But Kantar played the hand "abnormally." He won the trump lead in dummy, cashed the A-K of spades, ruffed the ace, and ruffed a diamond in dummy to produce this position:

North
♥ 10
♠ A 7 5 2

West
♦ Q
♠ K 10 6 3

East
♠ Q J 7
♥ J 4

South
♥ J 9
♠ Q 9 8

Now Kantar played the deuce of clubs, covering East's four with the eight. West took the ten and, aware that he could not afford a club return, played the queen of diamonds.

Declarer ruffed in dummy with the ten and East was helpless. If he discarded a spade, South would discard a club to make the hand, so East discarded the jack of clubs instead, hoping to leave declarer stranded in dummy with East now void of clubs.

But Kantar had the answer to this, also. He overruffed the ten with the jack, drew East's last trump with the nine, and led the queen of clubs through the king to bring to a conclusion an exceptionally well-played hand.

'Easy Rider,' McCafferty Dead

PONTIAC, Mich. (UPI) — Coach Don McCafferty of the Detroit Lions collapsed and died of an apparent heart attack Sunday while cutting the grass and moving sand in the backyard of his suburban Detroit home. He was 53.

The giant, genial head man of the National Football League team was attended immediately by a neighbor, Dr. Joseph Kessler, who rushed over and gave him cardiac massage in an effort to revive him.

McCafferty was rushed by ambulance to a hospital in Pontiac, where the Lions are building a new stadium for use in 1975, but he was pronounced dead at 2:05 p.m. EDT.

McCafferty was taking advantage of a beautiful, sunny day to work in his yard when he was stricken. Detroit had held its annual "Meet the Lions" scrimmage — this time with only two veterans— Saturday and the team was scheduled for a workout later in the afternoon.

The Lions immediately announced the day's workouts had been suspended. The rookies, free agents, and two veterans in camp were to be notified of McCafferty's death after dinner.

Lions owner William Clay Ford and General Manager Russ Thomas scheduled an administrative meeting after dinner. Club officials indicated a new head coach would be named as soon as possible.

"Don McCafferty's death has all of us unbelievably shocked with its suddenness," Ford said in a statement from East Hampton, N.Y. "Don was an excellent coach and an intelligent man. All of us will sorely miss him."

Don McCafferty

Three of McCafferty's assistants have head coaching experience—Bob Hollway at St. Louis, Ed Khayat at Philadelphia, and Rick Forzano at Navy.

The 6-foot-5, 250-pound McCafferty was anxious for the strike of the National Football League Players Association to be settled so he could start his second season as head coach of the Lions.

Detroit was 6-7-1 last season, McCafferty's first with the team. He was chosen head coach when former great middle linebacker Joe Schmidt abruptly resigned following the 1972 season.

The Lions' fortunes had fallen in recent seasons after the club hit a peak by losing, 5-0, to the Dallas Cowboys in the 1970 post-season playoffs. The Lions annually finished second to Green Bay during the Packers' years of prominence.

McCafferty's coaching career entering his brief stay with the Lions was enviable.

He joined the Baltimore Colts as an assistant in 1959 and succeeded Don Shula in 1970, the season John Unitas guided the team to a Super Bowl triumph over the same Cowboys who beat the Lions.

Baltimore didn't quite make it to the Super Bowl in 1971 and McCafferty was fired after the Colts started 1-4 in 1972, partly because the front office ordered him to bench Unitas in favor of Marty Domres and he wouldn't do it.

His record as a pro coach, including his year with Detroit, was 32-18-3.

McCafferty was a standout lineman and end at Ohio State in the early 1940s when Paul Brown coached the Buckeyes. He played in the Army and then with the New York Giants before joining Kent State for 10 seasons. Webb Ewbank tabbed him for his Baltimore staff in 1959.

He coached the receivers, then the offensive backfield, and then everybody when Shula resigned to take over the Miami Dolphins.

McCafferty is survived by his widow, June, daughters Jaclyn and Lisa, and sons Bill and Donald.

A special memorial service will be held Monday in Birmingham, Mich., with the funeral services Wednesday at Towson, Md.

McCafferty was given the nickname 'Easy Rider' by his players as a compliment for his easy-going way of handling the team, even in crucial situations.

First National, Aamco Reach Junior Finals

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Writer

Can Lincoln First National Bank recharge its batteries enough to withstand heavy-hitting Lincoln Aamco?

That will be answered Monday night at Sherman Field in the finals of the Area 4 American Junior Legion Baseball Tournament in a game scheduled to start at 8.

First National, facing the psychological impact of three straight losses to Aamco this season, survived a giant-sized scare Sunday night in dispatching Beatrice, 11-10.

Aamco remained unbeaten in the double-elimination tournament, bringing its bats alive for 12 runs in the fifth, sixth and seventh innings to sideline Lincoln Gerry's, 14-6.

Since Aamco posted an 11-5 win over First National Saturday night, First National must win Monday night to force another championship game Tuesday night for the right to represent Area 4 in the state tourney, starting Aug. 3 at Hastings.

Monday's championship, which will follow the scheduled 5:30 Midget title game between Lincoln Gateway Bank and Lincoln T.O. Haas Tire Co., will match First National pitching ace Steve McManaman against Aamco ace Reg Berka.

"Our backs are definitely against the wall," remarked First National coach Willie Weisbrook, whose club withstood a 3-run ninth-inning Beatrice rally, which fell one run short.

"They (Aamco) seem pretty confident," observed Weisbrook. "They believe in themselves, they're well-coached and very determined to make the other team beat them instead of themselves."

"They stick the ball better than any other team in this tournament," he added. "We can't afford to make the mental lapses we've been making and expect to win. We're getting runners picked off, dropping pop flies, missing signs. You have to execute those fundamentals to beat a good ball club like Aamco."

Beatrice scored three runs with two outs in the ninth inning to make a charge at First National. Ron Manes' 2-run, 2-out single triggered the rally before Greg Michaelson bailed himself out of the jam.

"We should have had the game wrapped up, but didn't have the killer instinct to put it away," said Weisbrook, who indicated he also is contemplating starting Mark Harrison on the mound Monday.

Aamco bunched nine hits to score 12 runs midway through its contest with Gerry's en route to its 18th win, including 11 in its last 13 games.

"It seems like the odds go against us all the more now," Aamco coach Bill Fagler said of his team's attempt to sweep First National four games this season.

"But the way we're hitting the ball now (34 runs in three tournament games), it's going to take a lot of runs to beat us," added Fagler. "We're getting hits all the way down the order. It's been contagious. We're as mentally ready as we can be."

Greg Smith's 3-run, inside-the-park homerun to left field in the sixth inning provided Aamco with its biggest boost. It transformed a precarious 7-6 lead into a 10-6 cushion.

Doug Votava collected three singles in five at bats and scored four runs to lead Aamco. Bill Hill, Doug Neill and Chuck Biggs all went 2-for-4. Gerry's cleanup hitter, Scott Schneider, rapped a single, a double and a triple and knocked home four runs.

Don Weber, McManaman and Mark Haas each collected a pair of hits to lead First National. Paul Fox went 4-for-5 for Beatrice, lacing three singles and a double for 3 rbi.

Taylor Dominates Tennis Meet

By CHUCK SINCLAIR

"Playing Harry Taylor is like going through a garbage disposal," joked University of Nebraska tennis player Sig Garnett after his 6-3, 6-1 loss to Taylor in the finals of the men's singles in the Lincoln Adult Open held at Woods Park Sunday.

Taylor, from Omaha, not only disposed of Garnett in the singles, but also Lincoln's Wally Rudolph in men's 35 singles, (6-1, 6-1), and then teamed up with women's 35 champion, Omaha Barb Ringwalt to win the mixed doubles event.

Although the score indicated Taylor "chewed up" Garnett, it was really considerably closer. "Three games in the second set reached middle add,"

Garnett said of his mixing with Taylor. "He was nailing up his shots and his serve real well."

In the beginning, it looked as if it was going to be a real dogfight. Taylor won the first game and Garnett had him down 3-0 in the second when Taylor came back to win it 4-3.

"That really blew my mind," Garnett added. "I had him down and he just bounced right back."

Taylor agreed that it was an important turn. "He (Sig) hit some real good shots when he had me down 3-0," he noted. "But I think he'll admit that they were right where I like them. My forehand is my best shot."

Garnett felt Taylor's serve should also be right in there with his forehand. "He must have aced me 10 times," Garnett admitted, although it was closer to five. He has a mastery of his serves, mixing them real well."

Taylor said the difference was probably the amount of times, he's been playing lately. "I've played in tournaments the last five or six weeks," the 36-year-old said. "It's really gotten my shots down fine. Actually, I've just been lucky all day."

Some of Taylor's luck must have rubbed off on his mixed doubles partner, Ringwalt. She also added two more first place cups for the mantle with wins in the 35 and over singles and doubles teaming up with Brenda Braig, also of Omaha.

Braig was fresh off a mid-morning singles championship with a 6-0, 6-1 decision over Lincoln's Ruth Anderson.

Lincoln was not without stellar performances, though.

Jim Rathe teamed up with cousin Bill Roehrs from Hastings to win the men's doubles 6-4, 6-4 from brothers Steve and Dennis Fischer from Kearney.

Other Lincoln winners included Bill Malone with a default win in the men's 45 singles over injured University of Nebraska tennis coach Jim Porter and Bill North who teamed up with Jim Colson to win the men's 35 doubles.

Lou Orloff and Don Grant from Lincoln were also crowned champions, in the men's 45 and over doubles.

Calderon Challenging For Riding Crown

By RANDY EICKHOFF

Star Sports Writer

At the end of the second week of racing at the State Fairgrounds Fred Ecoffey and Rodolfo Calderon are still in a two-way battle for the leading jockey honors with Calderon picking up two points on Ecoffey to trail by only seven going into the third week.

From the trainer standpoint, R.E. Lee all but threatens to make the race a run-away, compiling a total of 58 points on five wins, eight places and one show to lead runnerup Larry Starosick by 14 points.

Points are awarded on the basis of five for a win, three for place and one for a show finish.

Edward Werre, Wayne Anderson and Kenneth Jones are in a three-way tie for third followed by John Rettele, Jim Bazer, Jim Cuddie, Justo Moreno and Dan Switzer and Mike Phelps.

It is Bazer's first appearance on the jockey standings, hurdling five runs to the No. 5 position on the ladder. Phelps is tied with Switzer for the No. 10 position in his first showing.

Among the trainers, a major shakeup took place in the lower echelon with Larry Donlin, Jim Moss, John Martinez Martinez, and M. E. Shamburg dropping out of the picture and new faces Fred Psota, Terry Schaffer, Tom Chaffee and C. L. Dickey appearing.

The biggest advancement belongs to Taylor, making his first appearance this season by tying O. D. Kemling for No. 3 honors.

Highlighting the feature races for the third week is the Nebraska State Fair Breeders' Special with a $5,000-added purse for 3-year-old Nebraska-breds over a mile on Friday and the President's Cup with a $5,000 purse for 3-year-olds and older over a mile on Saturday.

Graded Handicap Picks 4 Winners

The graded handicap, done for the Lincoln newspapers by Lincoln Star turf writer Mark Gordon, picked four winners on Saturday's nine-race card at the State Fairgrounds.

The handicap selected both halves of the $24.40 double, scoring with Make Contact ($7.00) in the first and Arctic Bunny ($8.60) in the second. Sonny's Delight ($5.20) won the sixth as the handicap's best bet and Roman Doc ($5.20) captured the State Fair Handicap.

Reds Rip Padres, 14-1, To Close On Dodgers

By The Associated Press

Los Angeles' Western Division lead, a commanding 10½ games on July 10, shrank to 3½ games Sunday as the Dodgers lost to the Atlanta Braves 3-2 and the resurgent Cincinnati Reds swamped the San Diego Padres 14-1.

The space between the first-place Dodgers and the runnerup Reds is now the narrowest since April 26th, when Cincinnati trailed by three games.

The Reds' Joe Morgan homered in the third inning, then touched off a five-run fifth with a walk to help Jack Billingham beat the Padres, who managed five hits.

Los Angeles relief ace Mike Marshall threw Ralph Garr's grounder into center field to allow Leo Foster to race home with Atlanta's winning run in the 10th inning.

Elsewhere in the National League, the Pittsburgh Pirates edged the Philadelphia Phillies 4-3; the New York Mets topped the Montreal Expos 4-1; the Houston Astros trimmed the San Francisco Giants 3-2 and the St. Louis Cardinals nipped the Chicago Cubs 5-4.

In the American League, the Milwaukee Brewers blanked the Baltimore Orioles 4-0; the Boston Red Sox tripped the New York Yankees 8-3, and the Detroit Tigers beat the Cleveland Indians 6-3.

The Oakland A's beat the Chicago White Sox in a doubleheader 7-2 and 3-2; the Minnesota Twins won the opener of their twin bill with the California Angels 5-3, then dropped the nightcap 12-9, and the Texas Rangers downed the Kansas City Royals 6-4.

Richie Hebner doubled to set up one run, then lined a tie-breaking single in the ninth to boost Pittsburgh over Philadelphia.

Ken Boswell hit a tie-breaking double in the eighth inning and Teddy Martinez followed with a two-run single, leading New York past Montreal.

Lee May singled home a run in the 10th inning to lift Houston over San Francisco.

Ted Sizmore's leadoff homer in the ninth inning gave St. Louis the victory over Chicago.

Jim Slaton fired a three-hitter and George Scott and Mike Hegan clouted two-run homers to pace Milwaukee's victory over Baltimore.

A bases-loaded walk to Bernie Carbo and Cecil Cooper's run-scoring single, snapped a sixth-inning tie and Boston went on to beat the Yankee for the 10th straight time in Fenway Park.

Mickey Stanley set up a first-inning run, then clubbed a three-run homer to highlight a five-run ninth that powered Detroit over Cleveland.

Gene Tenace slammed a pair of home runs, Bert Campaneris doubled in two runs and pitcher Ken Holtzman scattered six hits to lead Oakland over Chicago in the first game of a doubleheader.

Jerry Terrell and Glenn Borgmann lashed two-run singles in a four-run fourth inning, and Bill Campbell pitched out of a bases-loaded situation in the seventh to preserve Minnesota's first-game victory over California.

Ellie Rodriguez, Bobby Valentine, Bruce Bochte and Lee Stanton slugged two-run homers and Rodriguez hit a tie-breaking double in the eighth inning to give the Angels the victory over the Twins in the second game.

Sai Bando's two-run double in a three-run third inning gave the A's a doubleheader sweep over the White Sox.

Alex Johnson and Jim Fregosi blasted home runs, helping Texas beat Kansas City.

Sterns Wins At Midwest

By BOB MOYER

It seems to be the year of the winning streak at Midwest Speedway this summer.

First, Terry Richards won three in-a-row, then Joe Wade won four-in-a-row and now it's Jay Sterns' turn as the Lincoln driver captured his second straight A feature super stock victory Sunday night.

Unlike last week, when Sterns eked out the win with only two laps to go, Sunday night went all the Lincoln driver's way. Taking the lead on the second lap of the 25-lap main event he breezed home without ever facing any serious contention for his lead.

"I was just trying to watch up the track and not get pinned down behind lapped cars like what happened to Styksal last week," said Sterns.

Sterns again had high praise for his owner-mechanic Ed Pospisil. Last week, Pospisil rearranged the suspension on the car and this week he changed the block from a 427 to a 454.

"It worked beautiful tonight," noted Sterns, adding that he still hasn't decided whether to leave the car's suspension like it is or to alter it from track to track.

"We finished second last night at Grand Island," noted Sterns. "So the suspension being this way hurt us there. Maybe we can come up with some combination that will work at all the tracks."

Sterns also said the track condition was better than it had been for several weeks.

"I want to give a vote of thanks to Pete Leikam (Midwest owner) and his crew. The track is as well kept up as any we've raced on all summer. They're real well organized and it shows in the way track is." Sterns so far this season has raced at seven different tracks in the Nebraska-Iowa area.

As far as the point standings race goes, the only winner Sunday night was Don Styksal. Styksal ranked third in the standings before the races, finished second in the main event: Point leader Richards failed to finish an A feature for the first time this season, dropping out after the 12th lap.

Wade, who is second in the standings, still did not have his car ready to go after severely damaging it July 19 in Red Cloud, while Kent Tucker, who is fourth in the standings and the only other A feature winner this season, dropped out after the 13th lap of the main event.

In the B feature Bruce Price outdueled Don Burlanek for his first feature win of the season while in the hobby main event Sam Briscoe held off Orval Hoffman and fast-closing Hank Bullin to gain the win.

Styksal had one moral victory, however, when he won the super stock trophy dash, edging out Tucker for the win. George Helter defeated Hoffman and Briscoe to win the hobby trophy dash.

Next racing in Lincoln will be Wednesday night at Midwest Speedway when the sprint cars resume action. Several new drivers from Arizona are expected to compete and in addition a demolition derby has been slated with the show.

Britain Warns Against IRA Bomb Threats

London (UPI) — Britain extended its nationwide alert against terrorist bombs to government offices and communications centers after a reported warning from the Irish Republican Army of a major explosion, defense officials said.

The government ordered an alert at military bases and oil installations in the wake of an explosion at a multilevel garage at London's Heathrow International Airport 200 yards from the main international passengers terminal.

The blast occurred after a telephoned warning from the IRA, police said. It destroyed several cars but caused no injuries.

News, tells of a coming law which will give the consumer more muscle.)

By DANIEL MOSKOWITZ

Washington — Congress is about to make it easier for citizens to tap the storehouse of information locked away in government files.

Ever since 1966, the consumer has had a right to demand to see a vast array of previously secret documents — and a lot of useful material has been made public. But a lot of federal bureaucrats have dragged their heels, too. A bill, which is soon expected to become law, will slap down those who have not been cooperative.

What Congress did in the 1966 Freedom of Information (FOI) Act was to set up a general, government-wide policy establishing the public "right to know." There are, of course, exceptions — military secrets can still be kept secret, and so can tax returns, civil servants' own medical and personnel records, recommendations from a government official to his boss. But the law means that the government agency has the burden of proving that something should not be made public.

The courts have tended to order information made public when it is a close question even on some data turned over to the government on the specific understanding that they be kept secret. "The trend is more and more towards full disclosure," says one Interior Department official who works on FOI matters. "It's getting so the pledge isn't worth the paper it's written on."

All citizens have to do is write the agency a letter asking for the documents and citing the Freedom of Information Act, they do not have to give their reasons for asking, but in a lot of cases it is obvious.

A widow, for instance, gets from the Labor Department the report of the on-the-site inspection made by a safety expert just after a factory accident that killed her husband. It may show negligence that can be the basis of a lawsuit against the company. The Transportation Department has given out data on how well moving companies satisfy their customers, and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare has turned over the reports on nursing home operations.

Under the pressure of the law, a lot of information that used to be kept confidential is now routinely available.

But those requesting the information have to know what they are looking for, and that can be a problem in dealing with some bureaucrats who demand "identifiable records." That is why Congress is now changing that language to say "any request for records which reasonably describes such records" must be granted — even if the citizen does not know its exact name or federal form number. Also, for the first time, officials who turn down FOI requests without "a reasonable basis in law" face punishments of up to 60-day suspension from their job.

But an FOI system that works better is not necessarily an unmixed blessing for consumers.

Take for instance, what Wolf Waber, the Treasury Department lawyer in charge of FOI matters there, calls "the most troubling, the most vexing situation"; government mailing lists. The treasury is currently fighting a mail order seller of coins, who wants the list of numismatists who have asked the mint to keep them informed on its coinage decisions. Similar requests are pending throughout Washington. The officials are worried about more than the possibility that the mail order houses will add to the junk mail coming to collectors' homes. They fear that the lists could be used by thieves to pinpoint homes where possibly valuable coin collections reside. But in the first court decision on the question, the judge held that mailing lists must indeed be turned over under the law.

Nichols Wins Canadian Open

PORT CREDIT, Ont. (AP) — Bobby Nichols breathed a big sigh of relief and happiness. "I'm in the World Series of Golf, thank goodness," he said, then offered a big, broad smile. "I don't have to get a home pro invitation this year."

He was joking. The home pro doesn't get into that exclusive event. Only the four men who win the world's major championships are in the field for that tournament that offers $50,000 to the winner.

Bobby Nichols

Nichols made it with his front-running triumph Sunday in the Canadian Open championship. "It was going through my mind all day," said Nichols, who has a special, extra interest in the World Series. It is played annually on Nichols' home course, the famed Firestone Country Club in Akron, Ohio. He's the head pro there.

Nichols turned back a host of challenges with a late birdie burst to win this national championship, perhaps the happiest triumph of his 15-year pro career.

He had a final round 68, two-under-par and collected a first prize of $40,000.

He had a 270 total, 10 under par on the warm and sunny 6,788-yard Mississauga Golf Club course.

Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino, Ray Floyd and Ben Crenshaw all challenged—then fell victim to disaster—before Nichols' three straight birdies clinched his victory.

John Schlee, who birdied the final hole, and Larry Ziegler tied for second at 274. Schlee matched par-70 and Ziegler had a closing 69.

Trevino and four others were next at 275. Trevino had a 72 and was tied with Floyd, Dale Douglass, Chi Chi Rodriguez and Lou Graham. Floyd and Douglass each had 68s, Rodriguez 70 and Graham a 67.

Floyd had a share of the lead after Nichols bogeyed the 10th and 11th holes, but Floyd dropped back with a double bogey on the 14th.

Crenshaw got to within a single shot of the lead but put one in the water and made double bogey on the hole.

Nicklaus, starting the day five shots back, edged to within two strokes of the lead but lost it on the 533-yard 12th hole known as "the big chief." It's the hole that cost him the title in this championship in 1965.

Nichols' victory pushed his winnings to more than $111,000 for the season, the best of his career. He will join South African Gary Player, U.S. Open champ Hale Irwin and the winner of the upcoming American PGA National Championship in the World Series of Golf.

Never s
“Canad without saying “Club.”

Men and women with a taste for the best never say "Canadian" without saying "Club." Because they won't settle for less than the unique taste that distinguishes it from all other whiskeys. A taste that never stops pleasing. In short ones before dinner, tall ones after—Canadian Club is perfect company all evening long. So discover C.C. tonight. Lifetime friends are rare.

Roberts Gains Double Wins

Roberts pushed Meginnis a little deeper into the cellar of the Lincoln AAA softball league by taking a doubleheader from Meginnis in Sunday action at Ballard Field.

Roberts won the first game, 8-2, behind pitcher Ron Melichar who permitted Meginnis only six hits. The second game found Guy Ames, Gary Thomas and Pat McHuron belting home runs to pace Roberts to a lopsided 15-1 triumph. Herb Schrader homered for Meginnis.

Swingers Win State Title

wingers made it a clean sweep for the Capital City here Sunday by winning the high school girls state softball championship.

Earlier, the Junior Swingers captured the junior high state title, while Garrett's Construction of Lincoln claimed the women's crown.

The Swingers won the high school division championship with losing a game in the double-elimination tournament.

They moved to the finals with an 8-3 victory over Scottsbluff. The women topped the same team, 9-8, in the title tilt after Scottsbluff eliminated Fremont, 6-3.

Lincoln Gerry's wound up fifth in the tourney, with Lincoln Roberts seventh. In final day ac-

11, while Fremont eliminated Gerry's, 3-0.

Swinger catcher Jane Shand starred in the championship game for the winners. Her third hit of the contest drove home the winning run, and she then had two putouts at home plate in the seventh inning to preserve the victory.

The Swingers now advance to the regional playoffs in Omaha next weekend.

Thompson Paces AGL Victories

Jim Thompson pitched a seven-hitter in the first game, and delivered the key hit in the second game as American General life swept a doubleheader from the Lincoln 80s in a Lincoln Semipro Baseball League affair at Uni Place.

Thompson was the winning pitcher as AGL took a 4-3 opening-game win and then swatted a three-run triple in the top of the seventh to boost AGL to a 5-2 win in the second game.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

AXYDLBAAXR
is LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
